Ohio Valley Yearly Meeting is in the process of revising its Book of Faith & Practice, formerly known as the Book of Discipline. Revisions and additions that have been updated by the revision committee or proposed for approval by the Yearly Meeting are included in this electronic version. Because the revision process is not complete, there is no printed version of the book that includes the new material.

Last Fully Revised in 1978

Ohio Valley Yearly Meeting received inspiration and adapted language from materials in the Suggested Reading List and from the following Friends Disciplines:

INTRODUCTION

Dearly beloved Friends, these things we do not lay upon you as a rule or form to walk by, but that all, with the measure of light which is pure and holy, may be guided: and so in the light walking and abiding, these may be fulfilled in the Spirit, not in the letter, for the letter killeth, but the Spirit giveth life.

The Ohio Valley Yearly Meeting of the Religious Society of Friends holds as the basis of its faith the belief that divine truth and the gift of God’s presence are available to all people in all ages. The indwelling presence of God implies the equal worth of all members of the human family and the capacity in all to discern spiritual truth and to hold direct communion with the Divine Spirit.

Our central shared spiritual experience is the meeting for worship. Friends seek to experience communion with the Divine and – through the Divine – with one another. No mediator, rite, or outward sacrament is a necessary condition of worship. All that is necessary is a seeking spirit on the part of the worshiper. When Friends gather in meeting for worship, we begin in silent expectancy awaiting the guidance and inspiration of the Spirit. This guidance is communicated directly to individuals and may be brought forward in vocal ministry. Through our shared experience of worship, we gain a clearer vision of God and God’s will for our lives. In like manner, our meetings for business are conducted under the discipline of worship, by which we seek neither majority rule nor a secular consensus but rather a clear understanding of the will of God for that group of Friends gathered at a particular time and place.

Because we experience that the Divine lies deeper than words, we have no formal creed. Friends have used various expressions—the Light Within, the Light or Spirit of Christ, the Holy Spirit, the Word, that of God, Truth, Power, Seed, the Ground of Being and many more—to describe our experience of the Divine Life. The tapestry of our beliefs is informed by the life and teaching of Jesus of Nazareth, Christian writings, the spiritual insights of many faiths and their inspired teachers, and a sense of awe in contemplating the natural world. What binds us together as a spiritual community is not uniformity of belief, but rather our sense of a common journey on a shared path, seeking the guidance of the Light. Our diversity strengthens us as we walk this path of love, compassion, and justice.

We are called to cultivate a close relationship with the Divine Spirit through daily spiritual practices and frequent occasions of group worship. We seek the continuing revelation of God’s will, and we test individual leadings and conceptions of Truth with the collective witness of Friends past and present. We endeavor to live in accord with the Quaker testimonies. These practical expressions of our faith flow from the belief that love, the manifestation of the Divine Spirit, is the most potent influence that can be applied in the affairs of life. Friends welcome into fellowship all those who sincerely try to follow the Inward Light.

LISTENING TO THE SPIRIT

The essential purpose of a religious organization is to foster and encourage the spiritual life and to bring the human spirit into intimate relation with the Divine Spirit. Our spiritual life may and should be developed through works of righteousness and loving kindness. Religious communities also provide organized opportunities for the development of our spiritual natures and for the constant renewal of our strength at the Divine Source.

Meeting for Worship

Waiting Worship

The basis of meeting for worship is silent and direct communion with God. It provides an opportunity to step together into the holy stream of reality which is the unchangeable and eternal living Christ, making it a time of expectant waiting for the leading of the Divine Spirit.

Gathering in an outward silence is not enough. Each individual must consciously and earnestly seek in humble reverence for a renewed sense of the inward power of the Spirit. From the depths of that stillness comes the consciousness of the presence of God. In this experience individuals will not only find direction for their lives and strength for their needs but will also feel an urge to share with others the openings that have come to them. As the worshippers seek to be led to deeper understanding and pray to become more obedient to the Christ within, their shared communion with the Divine will release to all in the meeting the riches of the Spirit.

True worship, whether vocal or silent, is offering ourselves—body, mind, and soul—to do God’s will. During the silent waiting, the flow of the Divine Spirit from heart to heart is often felt. Worshippers should gather in a spirit of silent prayer with a willingness to give, as well as to receive, so that the full possibilities of the meeting hour can be reached and its influence extended throughout the community from week to week.

Vocal Ministry

The Society of Friends believes that vocal ministry in the meeting for worship should arise out of a personal call to service. Such a call may be divinely inspired revelation of truth or the sense of a need in the meeting. Our conviction is that the Spirit of God is in all and that vocal utterance comes when this Spirit works within us. As we listen for God’s counsel we become willing messengers; as we receive the insurging power of divine love, we are consecrated to the service of God. Therefore we do not set anyone apart to supply the spoken word in our meetings. The varying needs of a meeting can best be supplied by different personalities, and a meeting is enriched by the sharing of any living experience of God. The responsibility rests upon every member to be ready and willing to take part in the vocal service under a due sense of divine prompting.

The call to speak is a normal experience. It may come to any earnest seeker for divine help and is recognized by a persistent inner urge to share religious experience or aspiration. Those who are timid or unaccustomed to speak should have faith that God will strengthen them to speak their messages.

3 Approved in OVYM Sessions, July 28, 2016
Experienced speakers should be watchful not to speak at undue length. It is helpful to have a period of silence between vocal expressions.

Children are a spiritual part of the meeting and there should be consideration of ministry suited to their understanding and needs.

Preparation for Worship and Ministry

Frequent periods of private retirement, meditation, reading the Bible or other inspirational texts, prayer, and appreciation of beauty and nature are recommended as preparation for the meeting hour. To awaken and sustain the spirit of worship, both teaching and prophetic vocal ministry are valuable. Spiritual sensitivity must always be the first requirement for this ministry. Constant openness to be guided by the Inward Light and a commitment to live with integrity are preparation for ministry, as are thoughtful meditation on the importance of this opportunity and a sincere dedication to the purposes of God.

Meeting for Business

The property of the true church government, and the practice and path of the true church in these our days, is to leave the conscience to its full liberty in the Lord; to preserve it single and entire for the Lord, and to seek unity in the Light and in the Spirit, walking sweetly and harmoniously together in the midst of differing practices.
Isaac Penington

Our business meetings are conducted under the immediate guidance of the Holy Spirit. Friends believe that everyone has direct access to the voice of the Inward Teacher and thus anyone may be an instrument through which we can receive God’s guidance. As such, we need to listen attentively and with forbearance to all messages that we are given in the course of a business meeting. Moreover, we have learned that the discernment of the group is usually superior to that of the individual in seeking to understand where God is leading us as a body. (For a description of the business process, see the section General Business Procedure.)

Worship Sharing

Worship sharing is an opportunity for a group of Friends to focus on a particular question under divine guidance. This may be an especially troubling issue within a meeting or a query inviting personal reflection. It can be helpful in a variety of situations when we need a chance to share with each other more deeply with each other than we would in ordinary conversation. Worship sharing opens a sacred space, where we can take down our usual defenses and encounter each other in that which is eternal. In that place, we are mindful of the personal nature of the sharing and do not repeat outside the session things that are meant only for that particular time.

We come to meeting for worship open to speaking or not speaking, as we are led. In worship sharing we come aware that we will probably speak, although no one is compelled to do so. We enter as though we have all the time in the world – yet mindful of how much time we actually have. All are individual responsible for keeping within the available time, so that each has an opportunity to speak and to listen.

to what others say. It is often helpful for one participant to be aware of the time and to gently shepherd those present.

We speak only for ourselves and from our own experiences, attempting to distill the promptings of the Spirit into a single statement. Our goal is to speak from the heart; not to answer, discuss, or correct one another, which can serve to separate us from one another and from what is said. Each person should speak only once before all have had an opportunity to do so. This opens space for those who are more reticent to share in the process.

While others are speaking, we are open and attentive. We listen to others as children of God, each one a unique gift to us. We try to hear how the Holy Spirit might be speaking to us personally in the other’s words, in their situation, even – and especially – when we find ourselves resistant to those words.

As each person finishes speaking, we allow time in contemplation to take in what has been said and to be sure we have truly heard it. This is an opportunity to identify our resonances and resistances before the next person speaks.

As we listen, we may become mindful of a pattern emerging that reflects the movement of the Spirit among us.

Clearness Committees

A Clearness Committee is created when one or more individuals who are seeking clearness ask three or four other Friends to join with them in a spirit of worship, listening, and loving concern. Anyone can request a clearness committee from the meeting that he or she attends.

Traditionally, clearness committees involved consideration of a concern that might be brought formally under a meeting’s care and discernment, such as a request for membership or marriage. In these cases, clearness is sought on behalf of both the meeting and the individual(s). (See the sections on Membership and Marriage.)

Clearness committees may also be used to test personal decisions or transitions. The clearness process may be used to discern the nature of a call to public ministry or witness, whether there is a leading of the Spirit, what faithfulness requires, and whether way is open for responding. This process may reveal that submitting the leading to the meeting’s care and accountability would be empowering.

Clearness is a collective process of discerning the leadings of the Inward Light. The process is simple. Members of the committee ask questions that might help the seeker’s own discernment – without offering advice, sharing personal anecdotes, or counseling. Testing for clearness is a spiritual exercise. It requires a spirit of openness and trust in the guidance of the Holy Spirit.

A clearness process that has been favored by the movement of the Spirit may produce an unexpected or surprising outcome.

Spiritual Friendships

A Spiritual Friendship is an intentional, structured relationship between two or more people committed to help one another in their spiritual journeys. The focus is on each person’s relationship with God and how God’s presence may be felt – or not felt – in their lives.

6 Approved in OVYM sessions, June 17, 2017
The establishment of spiritual friendships can deepen and strengthen the life of a Meeting. Two or perhaps three people agree to meet for at least two hours on a regular basis. The topics of conversation can vary according to the needs of each person, but the overall goal is to support one another during conversations through deep, Spirit-led listening and to pray for one another between gatherings. Often such friendships last for years.

Those Friends seeking assistance in forming a spiritual friendship can consult More Than Equals: Spiritual Friendships [Pendle Hill Pamphlet, #345] where Australian Friend, Trish Roberts explores the particular ways that Friends can benefit from such relationships. She grounds the practice in Quaker theology and suggests three key features: confidentiality, mutuality, and intentionality.

Individual Spiritual Disciplines

Prayer

Prayer is the aspiration of the soul. It is our communion with God and is essential to religious life. Prayer may be experienced throughout the day by noticing that of God in one another and in the natural world. The result of prayer becomes apparent in the more deeply centered lives of those who are constant in its exercise. We should cultivate individually the habit of turning to God at all times and of seeking divine guidance in all things. Vocal prayer, when prompted by a deep concern and a sense of human need, is a vital part of worship and often helps those assembled to come into the consciousness of God’s presence.

Scriptures and Other Spiritual Writings

There is a principle which is pure, placed in the human mind, which in different places and ages hath had different names. It is, however, pure and proceeds from God. It is deep and inward, confined to no forms of religion nor excluded from any, where the heart stands in perfect sincerity.\(^7\)

We earnestly recommend the reverent, habitual and intelligent reading of the Bible and other inspirational writings for spiritual enrichment. We would ground our children solidly in the Judeo-Christian faith while yet remembering the words of John Woolman.

God has spoken to all generations. Prophets and teachers to whom the message has come with more convincing power have recorded these revelations of Truth. The hopes and fears, aspirations and trust of devout people whose quest was to find God and obey God’s teaching are recorded in the Bible and other spiritual writings.

The progressive development which it records leads us from the primitive conceptions of an early religion to the culminating gospel of forgiveness, love and fellowship as taught and lived by Jesus.

Many of the various literary forms of the Bible are characterized by dignity, sublimity and beauty. Its spirit transcends the medium of expression. Through the ages people have turned to the Bible for consolation, for strength, and for hope. Our prayers are often uttered in its language and our ideals of social justice are found in its pages.

PRINCIPLES AND APPLICATION

The fundamental faith of the Religious Society of Friends leads to a way of life. In the application of the principles of truth to daily life we acknowledge as supreme the authority of the Divine Spirit in the individual soul. No outward authority can replace it. We must be true to our understanding of God’s guidance.

Individuals ought, however, to test their conceptions of truth by comparison with the individual and collective religious experiences of others. Such experiences are found in rich abundance in the Bible and in the lives of spiritual men and women in all ages, the highest expression being in the life and teachings of Jesus.

Jesus lived a life of love. He taught that love is the motive power of life, and that its application is the solution of all the problems of life. To the challenge of this way of life the spirit within us responds. We accept and make the ideals of Jesus our own. We accept the application of the principle of love as the practical way of life and the perfect goal short of which we cannot be satisfied. The bond of our religious fellowship is an experience in the soul that God is love.

Truth is an ever-opening pathway which, if followed, will lead us to higher levels of life and conduct. Its applications vary according to the changing conditions of life. By the faithfulness of each individual in seeking for the truth and making it known to others when found, we are able to advance.

It has been our experience that the guidance of the Divine Spirit has in great measure led us as a group to similar standards of life and conduct. In trying to understand the will of God, a statement of these standards is made as a guide for all who wish to compare their individual revelations to those of others.

We believe that a vital faith must have its application in life. We would place the emphasis not on works alone, nor on faith alone, but upon the union of faith and works.

Divine Relationship

It is our common experience that communion with God is a fundamental need of the human soul. Constant listening for the promptings of the Divine Spirit and seeking to follow it in every relation of life will lead inevitably to spiritual growth.

If we are faithful followers of Jesus, we may expect at times to differ from the practice of others. Having in mind that truth in all ages has been advanced by the courageous example of spiritual leaders. Friends are earnestly advised to be faithful to those leadings of the Divine Spirit which they feel they have interpreted truly after mature meditation and consideration.

Our weekly meetings for worship serve a helpful purpose in calling attention at regular intervals to our need for spiritual communion. They cannot, however, take the place of daily and hourly looking to God for guidance. Nor can any custom of fasting, abstaining from bodily comforts, or other practice take the place of constantly refraining from everything which has a tendency to unfit mind and body for being the temple of the Divine Spirit. The foundation for all our personal life and social relations should be the sufficient and irreplaceable consciousness of God.
Quaker Testimonies

\[\text{Be patterns, be examples in all countries, places, islands, nations, wherever you come; that your life and conduct may preach among all sorts of people, and to them. Then you will come to walk cheerfully over the world, answering that of God in every one; whereby in them ye may be a blessing, and make the witness of God in them to bless you.}\]

Quaker spirituality is grounded in a direct relationship with the Divine. Quaker testimonies are visible manifestations of our corporate spiritual relationship, flowing naturally from a shared experience of God’s call. They are not rules we follow or things we do in order to get close to God but the fruits of faithfulness. As we follow the guidance of the Inward Light, our lives become simpler and our relationships characterized by integrity, equality, and peace. We are drawn into loving community with each other and with all of creation. We become patterns and examples, because testimonies are outward and public acts – shared expressions of the beliefs of the whole community.

For the first 300 years of the Religious Society of Friends, Quakers expressed their inward spiritual relationship through various outward behaviors. These included ministry under the immediate guidance of the Holy Spirit; distinctive manners of dress and speech; and the rejection of professional clergy, outward rites and rituals, and what they termed “the world’s recreations and pastimes.” Such corporate witness could be dangerous. In times of persecution, publicly identifying with the Society of Friends exposed some to scorn and harassment, fines and imprisonment, even death.

What we now call testimonies have evolved over time. For example, Quaker plain dress, which initially only meant avoiding unnecessary ornamentation, later hardened into the classic gray uniforms for men and women. In the middle of the nineteenth century, most Friends came to see that wearing “the plain clothes” was merely a way to enforce outward conformity rather than an expression of an inward spiritual relationship. Today some Friends wear distinctive plain clothes as a personal witness, but most have returned to our earliest understanding of plain dress by adopting a simple, modest appearance.

Continuing revelation also results in new testimonies. For many years, individual Friends felt a personal concern for humanity’s relationship with the natural world. More recently, monthly meetings and Ohio Valley Yearly Meeting came to see that this is more than a personal witness. Sustainability is a corporate spiritual imperative, in other words, a Quaker testimony.

The origin of our contemporary concept of “Quaker Testimonies” can be found in the mid-twentieth-century writings of Howard Brinton. He proposed that over time Friends had come to realize the social implications of our religious beliefs, and this had resulted in the development of four corporate testimonies – community, harmony, equality, and simplicity. In the intervening years, this list has been modified and expanded in a number of ways by different groups of Friends. In Ohio Valley Yearly Meeting, the Quaker testimonies are generally understood to be simplicity, peace, integrity, community, equality, and harmony with creation. These are broad categories, not an exhaustive list of the ways in which we witness as a religious society. Each will be addressed in a subsection below.

While living our testimonies can be a source of joy, the Spirit has often directed Friends to challenge the customs and standards of the wider society. Faithfulness may require us to act contrary to comfortable and familiar ways. It can lead us into action we would rather avoid, but if we are true to our calling as Friends, we can do no less.

9 Statement of 1656, from The Works of George Fox (1831)

Community

Dear friends, since God so loved us, we also ought to love one another.

Our life is love, and peace, and tenderness; and bearing one with another, and forgiving one another, and not laying accusations one against another; but praying one for another, and helping one another up with a tender hand.

In a true community we will not choose our companions, for our choices are so often limited by self-serving motives. Instead, our companions will be given to us by grace. Often they will be persons who will upset our settled view of self and world. In fact, we might define true community as the place where the person you least want to live with always lives!

A well-functioning meeting acts as one, as a body.... It means understanding the meeting community as an organism that is responsive to God as a whole, rather than just as a collection of individuals.

Each of us lives in multiple overlapping and interconnected communities. Some we are born into, while others we choose to join. Each one provides us with an opportunity to test, refine, and express our beliefs, attitudes, and preferences. Claiming membership in a community is a way to define ourselves to others. As we live into that commitment, community can be more than just a group of people. It can embody our testimonies—a way we witness to the world about what we believe to be most important.

A Quaker Community is many things. It is where we seek and worship the divine. It is a body of Friends who provide temporal support and spiritual nurture for each other. It is where we test our sense of what God has called us to do individually and as a people. By shouldering the responsibilities of membership, we declare our willingness to wrestle together with what it means to be a Quaker and to help each other put what we discover into practice. It daily tests us to stay centered in compassion as we encounter the varieties of human experience. A Quaker community declares that each has a unique relationship with God and with each other; it challenges us to faithfully live into those relationships. It is where we risk being transformed.

Community life exposes our own and others’ foibles and failures. It reminds us to look to the Inward Light for guidance in our everyday lives. God brought our companions to us; living with them in community, we learn and relearn to love and forgive, to be patient, accepting, and generous. It provides a space for us to safely engage with beliefs that are different from our own.

If we only observe those principles within our Quaker community, it can be an excuse to withdraw into ourselves. The testimony of community requires that we also live out what we believe in the wider world.

When community is our testimony, we love our neighbor as ourselves. Our outward actions reveal spiritually-rooted alternatives to the ways of the wider culture – we model growing spiritually and help others do the same. The Quaker Testimony of Community proclaims a different way to live with others. It challenges each of us to put a relationship with God at the center of our lives and to let that bond shape all of our relationships with each other and with the larger world.

Equality\(^{15}\)

God does not show favoritism.\(^{16}\)

And God hath put no such difference between the Male and Female as men would make. \(^{17}\)

To consider mankind otherwise than brethren, to think favors are peculiar to one nation and exclude others, plainly supposes a darkness in the understanding. For as God’s love is universal, so where the mind is sufficiently influenced by it, it begets a likeness of itself and the heart is enlarged towards all men.\(^{18}\)

The roots of racial prejudice lie deep within us, and in seeking a solution to the evil results of racial tensions we need to search our own hearts. Our belief in the significance of every individual in the sight of God and his need for an abundant life can guide us even when we shrink before the vastness of the problem. \(^{19}\)

Early Friends based their treatment of others on scripture and continuing revelation. In the Bible, they saw that God created and cares for all humans equally. Continuing revelation led Quakers to see that believing in spiritual equality carries implications for how we live our outward lives.

There is that of God in all people, and we believe each person has equal access to the divine. This fundamental belief led Friends to appreciate women’s spiritual gifts and to reject practices designed to maintain distinctions among social classes. Friends came to recognize that no one could justly hold another in slavery. We are also coming to realize how such unjust inequities are maintained by an unequal distribution of wealth and resources – an inequality that many Friends benefit from. Living out the testimonies requires re-examination in each era. We believe humble, faithful discernment in community will reveal what love requires of us.

In recent decades Friends have also come to reject other forms of inequality. In particular, many straight Friends stood with lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, and queer Friends in calling for full equality for people of all gender identities and sexual orientations, and for the elimination of legal barriers to full equality.

Most Friends in OVYM have benefited from unearned, often unacknowledged and unrecognized privileges. It is easy to be lulled into believing racism and unearned privilege have been overcome. This can render Friends oblivious to the ways such attitudes influence behavior. Facing these uncomfortable realities and assumptions can reveal hidden, unfair, and harmful biases.

To be faithful, Friends must be willing to confront anything in our lives, in our religious society, and in the surrounding culture that unjustly holds one person up and holds another back. We need to live up to our understanding that all are equally children of God. Our calling as Friends is to seek more Light in ourselves and others and let that guide us in testifying to equality by our lives.

Integrity

Above all, my beloved, do not swear—not by heaven or by earth or by anything else. Let your ‘Yes’ be yes, and your ‘No,’ no.

Let your lives and conversations preach, that with a measure of the spirit of God you may reach to that of God in all.

Fear is a common obstacle to integrity.

When we place truth at the center of our lives, we live with integrity. A life of integrity arises from discerning divine truth as best we can and lovingly acting in accordance with that discernment. Integrity is expressed in being truthful, honest, and transparent; living so that we will not have to be untruthful in the future. These outward signs grow out of ongoing, inward work. Such faithfulness leads to wholeness, to the integration of body, mind, and spirit.

We are limited beings, who often hear the voice of God only faintly. Impatience may tempt us to follow our personal desires. Shame, pride, or insecurity can lead us to seek worldly approval. It takes patience and humility to stand still in the Light and to wait for clarity before we act.

We do not have to travel this path alone. Our meeting communities provide encouragement, strength and companionship in our everyday lives. They can also help us discern the rightness of a perceived leading and provide support and accountability when clearness has been reached. In similar fashion meetings embody integrity when Friends practice discernment together.

When we follow divine guidance, we find the strength and nourishment to be faithful and to speak and act in accordance with truth in all relationships and in all parts of our lives. Integrity is our way of life.

What causes wars, and what causes fightings among you? Is it not your passions that are at war in your members? You desire and do not have; so you kill. And you covet and cannot obtain; so you fight and wage war...

I told them I lived in the virtue of that life and power that took away the occasion of all wars...I told them I was come into the covenant of peace which was before wars and strife were.

Our principle is ... to seek peace, and ensue it, and to follow after righteousness and the knowledge of God, seeking the good and welfare, and doing that which tends to the peace of all. All bloody principles and practices we do utterly deny, with all outward wars, and strife, and fightings with outward weapons, for any end, or under any pretense whatsoever, and this is our testimony to the whole world. Declaration to Charles II, 1660

May we look upon our treasures, and the furniture of our houses, and the garments in which we array ourselves, and try whether the seeds of war have nourishment in these our possessions, or not. John Woolman, A Plea for the Poor

Through continuing revelation, Friends testimonies against war and for peace have evolved over the centuries. At first, Friends simply refused to participate in war or military service. Over time, Quakers came to understand that mere opposition to war was insufficient and were led to work for peace. Our peace testimony has led us individually and corporately to work for the abolition of practices rooted in violence and coercion and to sow the seeds of peace in our lives and in the world.

We live in a society that glorifies war. Friends seek to follow the teaching and example of Jesus in rejecting the use of coercion and violence. We believe that God calls us to live together in the covenant of peace envisioned by George Fox. Our path is grounded in deep spiritual listening for the guidance of the Inward Teacher, in humility and openness to multiple perspectives.

Living this way requires patience, perseverance, and courage, and often results in legal, social, or financial sacrifices. When faced with military registration and conscription, many Friends claim conscientious objector status or refuse any cooperation with the military. Some refuse to pay war taxes or restrict their incomes to avoid the assessment of such taxes. Some Friends voluntarily place themselves in harm’s way in order to witness for peace and against oppression and the use of violence. Friends also encourage governments to refrain from military responses to international conflicts and other acts of violence. Quaker organizations like the American Friends Service Committee and Right Sharing of World Resources contribute to building a more peaceful world.

25 James 4:1-2 (RSV)
26 Statement of 1651, quoted in Quaker Faith and Practice, Britain Yearly Meeting of the Religious Society of Friends
If violence and war are to be avoided, whether between individuals, groups, or entire nations, their sources must be recognized. The seeds of conflict are in our hearts. Fear, greed, and intolerance wound the human spirit and obscure the Inner Light given to each person. Quaker peace witness seeks to heal these wounds by answering that of God in each person with courage, compassion, and justice.

We believe that God has called us to lead lives of non-violence, seeking creative alternatives to resolve conflicts when they arise in our lives. The path of peace is in many ways at odds with the world around us and may lead us to act in ways that challenge the values of the dominant culture. On occasion, it may also require patience as we lovingly hold the tension of an as-yet-unresolved conflict, awaiting a transformation of mind and heart within others and within ourselves.

Friends seek to foster a future rooted in peace and freed from historical cycles of violence, resentment, and strife. We have a responsibility to nurture the spirit of love in all, but especially our young people, teaching them to practice non-violence in their own lives, to stand against coercion and intimidation in all forms, and to stand for mutual respect and peace.

Over the centuries, the Inward Light has guided Friends to oppose slavery, to end the death penalty, to improve conditions in prisons, to feed and clothe victims on all sides of wars, to empower the disenfranchised, the outcast, and the stranger. This work continues. As our understanding of God’s leadings for us grows, new expressions of our peace witness will emerge, develop, and mature.

Seeking Harmony with Creation

The Earth is the Lord’s and the fullness thereof, The world and those who dwell therein. (Psalm 24: 1)

And it would go a great Way to caution and direct People in their Use of the World, that they were better studied and knowing in the Creation of it. For how could Men find the Confidence to abuse it, while they should see the Great Creator look them in the Face, in all and every Part thereof? (William Penn, Some Fruits of Solitude)

The Heart doth love and Reverence God the Creator, and learns to exercise true Justice and Goodness, not only toward all Men, but also toward the brute Creatures ... to say we love God, and, at the same Time exercise Cruelty toward the least Creature, is a Contradiction in itself. (John Woolman, Journal of John Woolman)

Quakers have a long and deep history of respect for the creation of which we are a part. Our wondrous world is a manifestation of the Divine with the power to nourish us physically and spiritually. The ongoing exploitation of the Earth’s resources threatens the delicate ecological balance that sustains the current web of life. Flowing from our testimonies, Friends’ responses take various forms. In 2002, Ohio Valley Yearly Meeting Friends found unity around the principle of sustainability as a basic standard for responsible living.

God calls us, individually and corporately, to examine our lives and take action to walk more lightly on the Earth, seeking harmony with creation. Friends are also called to promote systemic changes in government and industry that would heal and protect the Earth. With Divine assistance, our witness should offer a pattern that would inspire and inform the actions of others.

Simplicity

[Requiring that] we must be all in one dress and one colour: this is a silly poor gospel. It is more fit for us to be covered with God’s Eternal Spirit and clothed with his Eternal Light, which leads us and guides us into righteousness.

Too many of us have too many irons in the fire. We get distracted by the intellectual claim to our interest in a thousand and one good things, and before we know it we are pulled and hauled breathlessly along by an over-burdened program of good committees and good undertakings.

Central to the Friends’ testimony on simplicity is the injunction to seek first the kingdom of God.

A life centered on listening to and following the Inward Teacher is characterized by simplicity. This simplicity flows from our direct relationship with God and leads us to maintain humility of spirit and to forego over-indulgence, ostentation, and stressful busyness.

The world we live in entices us with distractions. Friends are advised to guard against self-indulgence, extravagance, or obsession with anything else that would lead to neglect of our spiritual lives. Friends recommend simplicity and moderation in our social gatherings, weddings, funerals, and public occasions.

The practice of genuine simplicity is itself simple, and attempts to establish strict norms for simplicity can become distractions. For example, simplicity does not require the rejection of modern technology; indeed, the avoidance of practical technology can lead to the unnecessary complication of one’s own life and the lives of others. Simplicity is the natural character of a centered life, not an end in itself. Friends can be tempted to self-righteousness when we reckon our own simplicity to be superior to that of others. Each Friend is encouraged to seek Divine Guidance so that our outward behavior best reflects our inward focus on Divine joy.

Practicing simplicity nurtures our spiritual lives, strengthens our interpersonal relationships and benefits the larger world. By observing and encouraging simple tastes in apparel, furniture, buildings, and manner of living, we do away with unwholesome rivalry. This is helpful for our children who may feel pressured to define themselves and others by their possessions. Teaching our children the basis and practice of simplicity helps them to focus on the fundamentals of respectful relationships. When we curb our impulse to consume, we also strengthen our witness to care for the earth and to act for social justice. Focusing on the Inward Teacher frees us to live simply; living simply frees us to deepen our relationship with God.

32 Thomas R. Kelly, 1941
33 Faith and Practice of New England Yearly Meeting, 1985
Things lawful in themselves may become harmful when used to excess. Friends are advised to observe moderation in everything and to abstain entirely from that which may be the occasion of stumbling of others.

Alcohol, Drugs, Tobacco

Our bodies are closely responsive to the treatment they receive. They serve us best when they have proper nutrition and healthful living conditions. Friends have traditionally opposed the use of alcohol, tobacco, narcotics and other addictive drugs for reasons of health and because of the tragedies often resulting from their use. Total abstinence is the clearest witness against the use of harmful substances.

Friends are reminded that their attitudes and example where the use of alcohol, drugs and tobacco are concerned may be of positive educational force in the lives of others. Let us try by persistent efforts to combat the overwhelming influences of advertising and public license.

Criticism of varying standards should be tempered by loving appreciation of individual judgment.

Stewardship

We are called upon to be stewards not only of the Divine Spirit which God has implanted within us, but also of the rich provision which the Creator has made for the sustenance of all life on earth. If we are true followers of Jesus, we must ever be seeking to bring conditions of life in this world into conformity with the purposes of God. It cannot be God’s will that vast numbers of our brothers and sisters should pass their lives in surroundings that render difficult the quickening of the Divine Spirit within them. Nor is it sufficient that we should be merely kind and liberal to the poor, for the poverty we seek to relieve may be due in part to unjust conditions, intensified perhaps by our own thoughtless conduct.

Friends should consider how our ways of spending money affect others. We should endeavor to share our advantages and should guard against pursuing modes of life that minister only to our comforts. When we live in the Life which is attuned to nature and which finds joy and satisfaction in human relationships and personal growth, we will be less dependent on material possessions and more protective of our environment.

Purchasers who buy articles that are useful, well made and produced under right conditions help to direct industry into channels beneficial to society.

Owners of property, whether in the form of land, stocks or securities, are counseled to be mindful of the responsibility which their ownership imposes for the management and uses of their property. Investors of money should keep in mind not only the security and rate of interest, but the conditions under which the income is produced.

Recreation and Use of Time

Friends understand that each day and each hour is given to us as a gift. We seek patterns of living that enrich and refresh our spiritual and social lives and involve us in healthy interactions with all of creation. The daily choices we make about use of our time can strengthen or diminish our connections with the Divine Spirit and with one another. Recreation is beneficial and an important part of a balanced life. Friends are advised, however, to examine their use of leisure time and consider whether our recreation is consistent with our understanding of lives centered in Truth and Love.

For example, Quakers bear a testimony against activities such as betting, gambling, and lotteries. We hold a firm belief that these practices are wrong in principle: gambling promotes the false promise of unearned wealth.

Close Relationships

Therefore, as God's chosen people, holy and dearly loved, clothe yourselves with compassion, kindness, humility, gentleness and patience. Bear with each other and forgive whatever grievances you may have against one another. Forgive as the Lord forgave you. (Colossians 3:12-13)

See these Quakers, how they love one another. (Edward Hicks, 1851)

Introduction

The fundamental faith of the Religious Society of Friends should be visible in our daily lives. Faithful Friends seek to practice Divine love in close relationships with our community of family, friends, and the children under our care. As we experience God’s love, we grow in love for God and our fellow human beings. Both individuals and monthly meetings have a responsibility to support and nurture spiritually-edifying relationships built on this foundation.

Friendship

Deep friendships strengthen us spiritually. They encourage, stretch, challenge, and sustain us. In friendship we respect one another, protect one another’s reputation, and honor confidentiality. Good friends minister to one another by listening with an open heart and mind and speaking truth with love. Through our experience of friendships across genders, sexualities, classes, generations, faith traditions, races, and ethnicities we move toward establishing the Kingdom of God on earth.

Since the earliest days of our Religious Society, Quakers have been encouraged to know one another in those things that are eternal. Spiritually uplifting friendships require faithfulness to the leadings of the Spirit, not necessarily agreement on every point of faith and practice.

Sexuality

Sexuality is a gift from God, regardless of sexual orientation or gender identity.

It is a powerful force that can transform life in ways both positive and negative. Mutual love and respect, honesty, and commitment are essential ingredients of a rightly ordered relationship.

Deep respect for that of God in each person requires that our relationships be free of exploitation and abuse as well as subtle manipulation. Abuse of sexuality can have serious, long-term, emotional, physical, and spiritual consequences. Sexuality education for both children and adults should use the best scientific information available. Furthermore, because sexuality can be one of the ways we participate in the love of God, a true understanding of sexuality must also include the spiritual dimension.

Marriages and other steadfast commitments

Our meetings are enlivened and challenged by marriages and other steadfast commitments. Such commitments build spiritual bonds that make themselves felt not only in the home and in the meeting but also in the world. As relationships develop, the partners ideally find richness in sharing on all levels of being: physical, emotional, intellectual, and spiritual.

Some committed partners request marriage under the care of the meeting. [An affirmation of marriage equality for same-sex couples is to be found on pp. xx in this volume in the context of the sub-section on the Testimony of Equality.] Following a discernment process, marriage is solemnized in a Meeting for Worship, the partners promising with Divine assistance to be faithful to each other. We believe that God alone can rightly join partners in marriage, and neither a religious nor a secular official is required to accomplish this. When a Quaker Meeting takes a marriage under its care, it witnesses the marriage and makes a serious commitment to support and strengthen that marriage. [The recommendations for the wedding procedure are to be found on pp. ?? in this volume.]

It is the conviction of Friends that marriage is a covenant for life. A lifelong commitment can sustain a marriage through very trying times, forging a deeper and more spiritually mature relationship. Implicit in the marriage promise is the realization that problems and conflicts will arise and that both partners are committed to making sincere efforts with Divine guidance to resolve them. This is not an easy task but a high calling toward which we should strive.

Supporting marriages and other steadfast commitments

Meetings have a responsibility to lift up the importance of love, trust, and mutual respect in marriage and other steadfast relationships. As time passes and individuals change, relationships will also change. These changes offer opportunities for spiritual growth and for the deepening of the relationship. Meetings can nurture this process in a variety of ways. This support might range from home visitations, to celebrations of anniversaries, to holding workshops and retreats, to referring couples to resources offered by wider Quaker bodies.

If particular needs or difficulties arise, Friends are advised to hold the couple in prayer and to offer gentle encouragement. It is our experience that a confidential clearness committee offered by the meeting can assist a couple (or an individual) in seeking God’s guidance in the relationship. Meetings should be aware of their limitations and be prepared to refer couples to specialized resources beyond the meeting.

Sharing a home

Friends recognize that shared homes include a variety of possible relationships, such as single-parent, two-parent, blended, and multi-generational households, as well as adults living without children. We rejoice and are nourished in homes full of friendliness, refreshment, and peace, where the Light can be felt by those who live there and by all who visit. Such homes reflect caring, trust, and commitment in an atmosphere of good humor and play. The efforts of making a home should be shared with tender regard for the needs and abilities of all members and with appreciation for their unique contributions, recognizing that needs and abilities grow and diminish over the course of each person’s life. In the home our beliefs and practices are tested on a daily basis, and conflicts within families are inevitable. Learning ways to resolve them through openness, honesty, and mutual respect helps strengthen our relationships. Friends are reminded that the guidance of the Light Within is at all times available to lead us into greater love.

Special needs and long-term illness

Special needs and long-term illnesses can arise at any time in a person’s life and may entail physical, cognitive, social, or psychological challenges. Caring for a child, adult, or aging family member with special needs or a long-term illness can bring unanticipated blessings, but it can also exhaust and isolate the caregiver and can put strain on relationships within the household. Realizing that families may be reluctant to ask for help, Friends should reach out with sensitivity to offer support and nurture to each family in a way appropriate to its unique needs.

Addiction in a home

Addiction to alcohol and other substances poses unique challenges that can seriously undermine the health of a household. Friends are encouraged to inform themselves about addictive behavior in order to provide appropriate types of support to addicts and their loved ones. Addiction requires treatment, and support of an addict requires support for treatment. Even with the best of intentions, providing shelter and sustenance can merely perpetuate the addiction. Meetings should support members who are undertaking the difficult actions required to make recovery possible for members of their households.

Divorce

Friends are cautioned against divorce or separation except under extreme circumstances. Escape from domestic unhappiness through the all too common practice of divorce repudiates an agreement entered into for life, and gives countenance and support to a usage demoralizing to home life. Friends should rather strive, through frequent communication on a deep and honest level, to reconcile differences when they arise. Even when anger and resentment arise, these feelings may be dealt with in constructive ways which contribute to self-knowledge and improved interpersonal relationships.

Although Friends may make every effort to reconcile differences, there are times when close relationships end. Meetings can play a constructive role in these transitions by extending compassionate care to all those involved and responding to that of God in each person. Friends should recognize that children in these situations may be especially in need of the meeting’s love and care.

Abuse in a home

The exercise of inappropriate power in close relationships can result in physical, psychological, or sexual abuse. In the face of the social isolation often associated with an abusive home, those victimized may feel alone and desperate. Meetings are advised to educate themselves about domestic abuse and to become particularly sensitive to signs of such situations and to be bold in offering assistance. Meetings are encouraged to create communities of trust in which those who are being abused can seek the support of the meeting.
Nurturing children

To watch the spirit of children, to nurture them in Gospel Love, and labour to help them against that which would mar the beauty of their minds, is a debt we owe them; and a faithful performance of our duty not only tends to their lasting benefit and our own peace, but also to render their company agreeable to us. (John Woolman, 1758)

Our children are given to us for a time to cherish, to protect, to nurture, and then to salute as they go their separate ways. They too have the light of God within, and a family should be a learning community in which children not only learn skills and values from parents, but in which adults learn new ways of experiencing things and seeing things through young eyes. From their birth on, let us cultivate the habit of dialogue and receptive listening. We should respect their right to grow into their own wholeness, not just the wholeness we may wish for them. (Elizabeth Watson, 1980)

Every child deserves physical, intellectual, and spiritual nurture. To this end, parents and other adult caregivers must establish themselves as loving and reliable sources of guidance. Caring for children is a life-transforming responsibility, bringing joys, challenges, and experiences of personal and spiritual growth for adult and child. Through good example and consistent teaching, we can counteract many of the negative influences children inevitably encounter. Children are greatly influenced by parents who lead faithful lives, discerning and following the Light Within. Our inward faith is made manifest through practicing simplicity, honesty, nonviolence, service, and love.

To guide our youth toward a life of fulfillment and service, it is essential that Quakers teach their children about creative responses to conflict, the consequences of violent behavior, discernment in sexual activity, the dangers of addiction, and the importance of living in harmony with creation. At the same time, parents and other caregivers should not impose on their children their full range of expectations but rather should have a deep appreciation of who their children are in their own right and support the unfolding of each child’s unique gifts. We believe that by nurturing the development of self-worth, self-confidence, and self-discipline, we help children to grow into responsible and compassionate adults. Parents and other caregivers should teach their children about the faith and practice of the Religious Society of Friends, and meetings should support children’s participation in Quaker youth events and activities. The habit of quiet waiting upon God, both in meeting for worship and in regular family devotion, tends to strengthen and develop the spiritual life of a child.

Preparation for Death

An awareness of our mortality may help us to find life richer in the present, to cope better with the deaths of those we love, and to accept death with dignity for ourselves. Friends are encouraged to talk openly about death and its meaning for our spiritual lives. Many find that as they face impending death, they are drawn to invite their loved ones into exceptionally frank and open conversations, often leading to emotional healing and forgiveness.

Meetings are encouraged to provide practical education about preparations for death. We can ease the impact of our death on those we love by making certain preparations. Each adult Friend is encouraged to consider making advanced directives, to make a will, and to express preferences regarding organ donations, the disposal of the body, and a memorial meeting. Meetings may wish to keep copies of these documents on file and be prepared to contact relatives in the case of a member’s death or other emergency.

Bereavement

Not even the most careful preparation can alleviate the natural sorrow and grief felt by surviving loved ones. Grieving family and friends will welcome the strength provided by the spiritual, emotional, and practical support of the wider family of Friends. Meetings are advised to recognize that not everyone grieves the death of a loved one in the same way, and Friends are advised to be sensitive to the unique feelings and needs of each grieving person. Friends may be called upon to be compassionate listeners and to help those grieving appreciate how much the gifts of their loved one enriched the lives of others. Friends are advised to be sensitive to grieving survivors during potentially tender times of the year or on particularly tender occasions. All can find support and joy in continuing to celebrate the life of the deceased person while acknowledging his or her death.

Work in the World

Friends in all fields of endeavor are urged to work in the spirit of service, to avoid exploitation of others, and to make our Quaker values visible in the wider world. The highest interests of employers and employees are mutual and interdependent and can be achieved with understanding and cooperation, fairness and goodwill. We urge all to depend on and to be willing to advocate for these principles. When manifest injustice exists in a workplace, each person should conscientiously seek out just means to remedy that injustice.

Those who are employers or supervisors have a responsibility to show respect for each employee as an individual; seeing that everyone’s workload is equitable, that each one has reasonable working hours, and that pay rates are consistent with the work performed. In setting wage levels it is essential that employers consider the needs of employees and their families. Likewise, it is important for workers to maintain a high standard of work quality.

In our relations with corporations as stockholders, Friends should be governed by the same high standards as in our relations with individuals. If the conduct of a corporation is inconsistent with high standards of individual conduct, it is our duty to first call on the corporation to correct the problem. If such protests are unsuccessful, Friends should divest ourselves of stock ownership. It is also inconsistent to work for or to purchase products from such a corporation.

Accumulation of Wealth and Payment of Debts

Habits of industry and thrift sometimes degenerate into love for wealth and its accumulation. Clear and accurate accounts are essential to keep Friends aware of their resources and expenditures. Friends are advised to make prompt payment of just debts at the time agreed. It is a moral duty to avoid incurring debts beyond our ability to pay and even when legally discharged of a debt, we should feel that our obligation remains. Friends should be cautious in starting a business without requisite capital and experience, or of engaging in risky ventures in order to acquire abnormal profits.

Friends should seek to discern how much of their income or property can be spared, and how it may be wisely distributed for the benefit of others. It should not be a burden but a privilege to be able to contribute when appeals are made to us for the support of our Religious Society and for other worthy causes.

Serving as a Trustee

When Friends are in positions of trust, whether as trustee, assignee, treasurer or other fiduciary capacity in which we are responsible for the administration of property of others, we should exercise great care to discharge our duties with diligence, good judgment and the strictest integrity. We must be scrupulous in abiding by the spirit as well as the letter of our promises, contracts and agreements, in buying and selling, and in all other matters. Any such moneys must be kept strictly apart from our own, with separate accounts maintained, and a careful audit be made at least yearly of all accounts, including the verification of all investment securities.

Civic Relations

Duties of Citizenship

Believing that the Kingdom of God on earth is advanced by those who devote themselves with unselfish public spirit to the building of a high national character, and to the shaping of a righteous policy of government both at home and abroad, we urge Friends to be active in the performance of all duties of good citizenship.

Voting and Public Office

Every opportunity for participation in decisions of public matters by ballot should be used, and when exercising their duties as individual voters, Friends are urged to maintain a clearness of judgment which will enable them to act upon principle.

By the participation of men and women of intelligence, calm judgment and high principle in the direct responsibilities of government, which may be done to form a healthy public opinion which will lead to purity of administration and to a wise solution of the many problems of city, state and national government. When called to serve in public office, Friends should consider the public good, and having accepted such office, they should serve with diligence and integrity. Public office should not be used for the gratification of personal ambition or for pecuniary gain.

Voluntary Public Service

While the number of those who are able to service in public office may be comparatively small, there is a wide field for voluntary public service in the several agencies and organizations which exist for civic betterment. Friends are urged to be faithful to their responsibilities as citizens by taking part in such service.

Treatment of Civic Offenders

Enlightened treatment of civic offenders by constructive methods rather than by merely primitive action is a reform challenging those who endeavor to follow Christian principles. While condemning unrighteous acts, we should at the same time seek to have offenders treated in a manner conducive to the strengthening of their moral character, the maintenance of their self-respect, and their reclamation as useful members of society.

---

Early and recent experiences of Friends, as well as expert opinion and statistical analysis, indicate a failure of the U.S. prison and rehabilitation systems. The rate of recidivism (return to prison) continues at greater than 50% as a national average. For most offenders, incarceration means further training in crime; for their families, it means social disgrace and economic insecurity. It should be considered only when the individual is a real danger to society. Friends should be counted among those who actively seek and support alternative methods to incarceration in our criminal justice system.

Friends are opposed to capital punishment because it is contrary to the Divine law of love. The application of the death penalty is brutalizing and degrading to the public mind. It leaves no room for the reformation of character, nor for the revision of the sentence in the event of a miscarriage of justice.

Obedience to Law

Our first allegiance is to the will of God. It should, therefore, be the endeavor of every Friend to influence the making and changing of secular laws so that they may more nearly accord with Divine laws. It is the duty of all citizens to uphold and obey all legal enactments, unless they directly violate their deep convictions of the dictates of God. If conditions arise in which national or civil laws appear to be absolutely at variance with Divine law, Friends should take prayerful counsel to arrive at a decision in accordance with God’s will. They should also sustain and uphold with spiritual encouragement those who are impelled by allegiance to Divine law to take a difficult stand. Special care should be given in such instances to make clear that the action is not taken in disrespect of the laws of society nor with intent to evade them, but in accordance with the dictates of the higher law. Those who act on the principle of obedience to God must be prepared to suffer for the sake of their convictions.
MEETING STRUCTURE, FUNCTION AND PROCEDURES

In addition to meetings for worship, meetings for business have been organized to provide for the orderly care of such matters as are essential to maintaining a religious society. The monthly meeting is where individual membership is recorded. Currently OVYM monthly meetings in Ohio and Kentucky belong to Miami Quarterly Meeting, and Indiana monthly meetings belong to Whitewater Quarterly Meeting. The two quarterly meetings belong to Ohio Valley Yearly Meeting.

General Business Procedure

The Society of Friends believes that our best decisions are dependent on spiritual discernment. Therefore it transacts its business by seeking unity under divine guidance rather than by majority vote or even consensus. This means that in our business meetings, each contribution to the discussion is heard in a spirit of prayer. We listen lovingly and respectfully for the voice of God through what each person says.

Clerks are advised to prepare a tentative agenda for business meetings, so that Friends may consider issues in an orderly fashion. When a matter requiring a decision is placed before the meeting, time should be permitted for careful and deliberate consideration. Friends are advised to seek and wait for recognition by the Clerk before speaking and to speak succinctly and to the point at hand. Friends are called to seek divine guidance, to exercise mutual forbearance and, when speaking, to refrain from unduly pressing their own views.

When the Clerk senses that Friends may be approaching unity around a spiritually grounded judgment, the Clerk should test the sense of the meeting. If Friends appear to be generally united, the Clerk should propose a minute, even if some still wish to speak to the issue. If someone present feels that such a proposed minute does not capture the light the meeting has been given, he or she is free to offer an amendment or substitution. While a clerk is working to compose a minute, the meeting is advised to remain in centered worship, holding the clerks in prayer. When it appears that appropriate wording has been found, the Clerk asks whether Friends are prepared to approve the minute. When the meeting approves the minute, its final wording is written by the recording clerk and becomes part of the permanent record of the meeting. The minute should be accepted by all members, whether they were present or not, as the best current understanding of the will of God for the meeting.

In some instances, the overwhelming preponderance of Friends may feel united around a proposed course of action, while one or more Friends feel serious hesitations. In such cases, Friends are advised to seek Divine Guidance about whether they should stand aside or stand in the way. When a Friend stands aside, he or she faithfully expresses these hesitations but agrees to support the sense of the meeting.

It is important for Friends to bear in mind that standing in the way of a decision on which there is otherwise unity is a privilege granted by the community, not an inherent right of any individual to block an action. When, under a spiritual leading, someone wishes to stand in the way of a proposed action, this means that unity has not been reached. Thus, the proposed action cannot immediately go forward, and Friends will usually continue to labor spiritually about the matter at hand, either at the same meeting for business or in the future. When Friends stand in the way of a decision, they accept the responsibility of continuing to hold the issue in discernment and prayer, are willing to consider that they may be mistaken, and are willing to share a change of conviction, should that occur. On the other hand, there are instances in Friends’ experience where the faithfulness of a single individual has made it possible for an entire meeting to come to a deeper understanding of the Divine Will for the ultimate way forward.

When a meeting cannot unite on a minute, the old policy remains unchanged or the new business is not taken up (as the case may be) and the subject is dropped for the time being to allow for careful and prayerful contemplation before being considered again.

This method has been followed by Friends since the organization of the Society. It is more than a set of rules; it is an expression of a deep-seated conviction that as religious communities, our meetings should seek to be in spiritual unity with God and each other before proceeding. It has been proven by experience to be both spiritually satisfactory and practically effective. Its use is commended to Friends in conducting both business meetings and committee meetings.

Establishment and Relation of Meetings

The Establishment of Meetings

Friends and seekers who find themselves at a distance from an established monthly meeting may find spiritual sustenance by forming a worship group. These groups often meet in the home of one of the attenders. A worship group is typically not affiliated with any monthly, quarterly or yearly meeting.

A worship group that desires the company and support of other Friends and wants to be recognized as Quaker as defined by Ohio Valley Yearly Meeting’s Faith and Practice should request to become a preparative meeting under the care of the nearest OVYM monthly meeting. If the monthly meeting agrees to receive this charge, a defined group of monthly meeting members should be selected to assume the responsibility of organizing the preparative meeting and reporting frequently to the monthly meeting.

Without first becoming a preparative meeting, a worship group could appeal directly to the quarterly meeting to be recognized as a monthly meeting.

A monthly meeting is established by action of its quarterly meeting. The quarterly meeting should investigate and give due consideration to any group requesting to be organized into a new monthly meeting. The quarterly meeting may appoint a committee to render assistance and advice to the group forming a new monthly meeting. This committee should give regular progress reports to the quarterly meeting. Among other considerations, the committee should verify that the new group’s members are familiar with the OVYM Faith and Practice and that the meeting is organized according to it.

The quarterly meeting may continue its oversight for a year after the establishment of any new meeting, in order to strengthen and aid the members in carrying their new responsibilities.

New monthly meetings are typically formed in one of the four following situations:

- The preparative and its monthly meeting agree it is time to recommend that the quarterly meeting recognize the preparative meeting as a new monthly meeting. In this case, it is likely that most of the work of oversight of the new meeting has already been accomplished. Officers and members of the new monthly meeting should be recorded at the quarterly meeting session.

43 Section approved at annual sessions in June 2018
where the new monthly meeting is approved. Certificates of transfer from the overseeing monthly meeting to the new meeting are not required.

- A worship group that appeals directly to the quarterly meeting for recognition as a new meeting for worship places a larger responsibility on the quarterly meeting to investigate that good order is being used among the attenders. The quarterly meeting should appoint a committee for advice and counsel. Officers and new meeting members should be recorded at the quarterly meeting session where the new meeting is approved. An attender who is a member in good standing at another monthly meeting must request a certificate of transfer to the new meeting.

- If the membership of any monthly meeting should consider it advantageous to separate into two monthly meetings, or to establish a new Meeting, they should propose to the quarterly meeting that an approved group of members be set off to constitute the new monthly meeting. Certificates of transfer between the two meetings are not required. The quarterly meeting should appoint a committee to be present at the reorganization to assist in making necessary property adjustments between the two meetings.

- A group of Friends who are members of various monthly meetings that desire to organize a new monthly meeting should bring their request before the quarterly meeting with which they wish to be associated. The quarterly meeting which approves the request is directed to appoint a committee to be present and assist, if necessary, in the organization of the new meeting. Each attender of the new meeting shall request a certificate of membership transfer from his or her monthly meeting to be forwarded to the newly appointed clerk.

A quarterly meeting may be established either upon the initiative of the yearly meeting or upon approval of the yearly meeting of a request from one or more monthly meetings, or from a quarterly meeting that desires to be divided into two quarterly meetings. The yearly meeting, in any case, should appoint a committee to be present and assist if necessary in the organization.

Discontinuance of Meetings

If it becomes desirable, in the judgment of the constituent members of any meeting, to discontinue it, or to unite with another, the request should be laid before the meeting to which it reports. The request should be considered and, if approved, a committee should be appointed to assist in making the necessary business arrangements, and in the case of the closing of a monthly meeting, to arrange for the proper transfer of individual memberships to another meeting. Information of such action should be forwarded promptly through the proper channels to the yearly meeting.

A preparative meeting should not be discontinued, or suspended, without first consulting the monthly meeting of which it forms a part; a monthly meeting should, in like manner, obtain the approval of the quarterly meeting, and a quarterly meeting should refer a similar request to the yearly meeting.

Reversion of Property

If a preparative meeting ceases to exist, all its records and property shall be transferred and conveyed to the monthly meeting of which it is a part. If a monthly meeting ceases to exist, all its records and property shall be transferred and conveyed to the quarterly meeting of which it is a part. If a quarterly meeting ceases to exist, all its records and property shall be transferred and conveyed to the yearly meeting of which it is a part. If two monthly meetings or two quarterly meetings merge or consolidate, all the property of both shall be held by the merged meeting.
Such transfer and conveyance shall be authorized by an appropriate minute, duly recorded, and the assignment, transfer and deed of conveyance shall be executed and delivered by the terminating meeting before such meeting is formally laid down or disbanded, or, in the case of merged or consolidated meetings, at the time thereof.

In the event that such action is not taken by such meetings before they are laid down, merged or consolidated, the monthly meeting, the quarterly meeting, or the yearly meeting entitled to receive any such records and property shall be the equitable owner thereof, and shall be entitled forthwith to require the assignment of conveyance of the legal title thereto, to be held by such monthly, quarterly, or yearly meeting under and upon the same trusts as the records and property have been theretofore held, if it is practicable that such trusts be carried out; otherwise, upon trusts similar thereto as the successor meeting may determine. No records or meeting property shall be distributed or partitioned among the individual members of a meeting.

All moneys invested in the properties referred to having been contributed for the purpose of maintaining meetings and/or burial grounds under the care of Friends, a moral obligation is laid upon us to see that this purpose is served, even though particular meetings may no longer exist. Upon the meetings receiving such property the obligation rests to receive and provide care for properties and burial grounds conveyed to them.

The Executive Committee is directed to assist meetings in placing their meeting properties in suitable trusteeships, if desired. Funds and/or properties may be turned over to the township trustees, historical societies or other appropriate organizations if it is considered that better care will be obtained in this manner than through the yearly meeting structure.

The Monthly Meeting

The monthly meeting is the fundamental working unit of the Society.

Functions

It receives and records names of members, extends spiritual care and, if necessary, material aid to its membership. It provides for the oversight of marriages and funerals; for dealing, in a spirit of restoring love, with those who fail to live in accordance with our principles and testimonies; for removing names from the membership list, if this course seems necessary; for the collection of funds required to carry on the work of the Meetings; and for holding titles to property and the suitable administration of trust funds. The concern of any member for extending the work of the Society of Friends into any new field, or for taking up specific work under the care of a particular Meeting, may be suitably introduced into a monthly meeting. A monthly meeting is free to undertake any work and to assume any function consistent with our testimonies, and not specifically referred to quarterly meeting or yearly meeting.

Organization

Each monthly meeting shall name a suitable person to serve the meeting as Clerk. The duty of the clerk shall be to conduct all business sessions of the meeting, to see that a full and correct record of all proceedings is kept, and to carry out the instructions of the meeting on all matters pertaining to the complete accomplishment of its business. Assistants to the clerk may be appointed if needed.

---

Many meetings appoint a Recording Clerk who makes a written record during monthly business meetings and records decisions that are made. The recording clerk often reads the “minutes-so-far” during the business session, and the clerk asks for approval of those minutes.

A Treasurer shall be appointed to perform the usual service expected of such an officer, and shall be governed by such rules as meetings think suitable for the safe and orderly holding and disbursement of funds. The treasurer shall report regularly to the meeting and accounts should be audited annually.

Each year monthly meetings send a “State of the Meeting Report” to the quarterly meeting so that these can be printed and distributed with the Reports in Advance at Yearly Meeting Sessions. Meetings should send additional information to the quarterly meeting once a year: copies of official correspondence sent or received by the monthly meeting during the last year, the names of meeting correspondents, and statistical data for each meeting including membership changes, births, marriages, and deaths.

Meetings are urged to appoint a committee of Ministry and Counsel to focus on the spiritual well-being of the meeting community. Other standing committees may be designated according to the needs of the meeting. All appointments should be made for definite terms.

Religious Education

Religious education helps to establish and foster right relationships with God, with other people, and with all of creation. For both children and adults, such opportunities encourage renewed commitment to Friends principles and can support a spiritually-grounded way of living. To meet these needs and to support a lifetime of Quaker learning, each meeting is encouraged to provide study of the Bible, Quaker history, and the beliefs and values of the Religious Society of Friends.

Education of Children, Adolescents, and Young Adults

In addition to religious education, meetings have a responsibility for the schooling of their young people. Meetings should exercise care that all their children, adolescents, and young adults receive the education that they need. For some, education at a Friends school or college may be most appropriate. When possible, meetings should help with the costs of educational experiences.

Outreach

If we experience the creative energy and power of God in our lives then we too will want to share it and look for ways to invite visitors or inquirers to join with us. This requires us to make our meetings and our witness visible to the wider world. As we reach out to seekers our overall goal should be to clearly present who we are and what we believe, interpreting the Quaker way with both openness and integrity, remembering that inquirers and newcomers may be drawn to the Religious Society of Friends for a variety of reasons. When we organize or participate in events and activities that reflect our testimonies we should share the spiritual basis of our actions. Our goal is to provide a warm and welcoming spiritual community that invites newcomers fully into the life of the meeting.

Trustees

Friends recognize that all worldly property belongs to God and that we are merely its stewards. In some cases to meet the requirements of the law, a number of individuals are named as the legally responsible agents for real property or a financial asset. These trustees exist to fulfill the requirements of financial institutions and state and local governments. Although they may be the legal owners of a meeting’s property, they are the agents of the meeting and subject to the authority of the business meeting in all matters. To prevent problems, all legal correspondence should be directed to the Meeting’s mailing address.

Membership

Membership in the Religious Society of Friends ... is both a privilege and a responsibility. Ideally, it is the outward sign of an inner experience of the living God and of unity with the other members of a living body. (Faith and Practice of New England Yearly Meeting of Friends, 1985, p. 235).

Meaning & Responsibilities of Membership

Membership expresses a commitment to the Religious Society of Friends, founded on the belief that God is actively guiding the individual and the community of faith. Becoming a member expresses outwardly an inward leading toward spiritual enlightenment and growth. When a meeting accepts a person into membership, the meeting and the new member enter into a long-term spiritually based covenant relationship.

Membership entails several responsibilities including bearing faithful testimony to the guiding principles of the Religious Society of Friends and giving of one’s energy, time, and financial resources, as one is able. Members are expected to faithfully attend meeting for worship and meeting for business, and are encouraged to participate in quarterly and yearly meeting activities. Members should be willing to enter into a process of loving discernment with the meeting to seek where their gifts and talents can be most helpful. Such service may include pastoral care, religious education, witness to the broader community, or involvement in the broader Quaker world.

The Role of Attenders

There are those who manifest a continuing interest in the life of the meeting, but have not entered into formal membership. Friends welcome the participation of such active attenders in activities of the meeting, offer them guidance and instruction in Quakerism, and nurture their spiritual growth. Active attenders, nourished through their involvement with the meeting, familiar with and enriched by Friends’ basic beliefs and practices, and willing to undertake greater responsibilities within the meeting are encouraged to apply for membership.

Preparation for Membership

Friends consider membership to be a serious relationship to be entered into after careful discernment. It is generally recommended that an individual considering application for membership attend meeting for worship and meeting for business regularly, seek service on a meeting committee, and undertake a personal study of Quaker faith and practice. Prospective applicants for membership need not delay application fearing they have not yet attained a particular level of spirituality. Becoming a member is intended to mark the beginning of a long-term commitment to a way of life, not its ultimate completion.

Application Process

Those who desire to become members of the Religious Society of Friends should apply to the monthly meeting they attend by submitting a letter stating this request to the clerk of the Committee for Ministry and Counsel. The Committee will then appoint a clearness committee to meet with the applicant. The clearness committee should include one or more members of the Committee for Ministry and Counsel and may include other seasoned members of the meeting. The members of the committee will hold worshipful discussions with the applicant as often and for as long as necessary for all to reach unity regarding the rightness of the relationship and the readiness of the applicant for membership. During the clearness committee’s deliberations, applications for membership should generally be treated as confidential.

After meeting with the candidate, the clearness committee reports its findings to the Committee for Ministry and Counsel. When clearness to move forward with an application is reached, the Committee for Ministry and Counsel should report the recommendation for membership to the next regularly appointed monthly meeting for business. The committee’s report is to be recorded in a minute, but no action on the application is to be taken at that meeting for business. At this time Friends are encouraged to get to know the applicant if they have not done so earlier, and Friends who have questions or reservations about the applicant should explore these with the Committee for Ministry and Counsel. At the following regular monthly meeting for business, Friends should consider the application for membership and, if prepared to do so, should approve it, recording the action in a minute. The individual thereby becomes a member of the monthly meeting and of the quarterly and yearly meetings of which the monthly meeting is a constituent member. It is customary for Friends to appoint a committee to welcome the individual into membership.

If it becomes clear during the application process to the applicant, to the clearness committee, or to both that membership is not advisable or not advisable at this time, the application may be withdrawn. Friends are advised to respond lovingly to such applications, encouraging the applicant to continue attendance and participation in the life of the meeting. Those whose applications are withdrawn may be led to reapply for membership at a later time. Membership itself is not as important as the spiritual growth of the prospective member.

Dual Membership

Membership is a major commitment to participate in a particular community of Friends, and full participation in two religious bodies at once is usually impractical. Dual membership is generally discouraged. Except in unusual circumstances, a member of Ohio Valley Yearly Meeting belongs to a particular monthly meeting and should not hold full membership in another religious body, including another monthly meeting.
Sojourning Membership
When Friends find themselves temporarily residing away from their home meeting, they may wish to be released from most of the usual responsibilities of membership in the home meeting and be willing to take on such responsibilities in their new location. Such Friends may ask their home meeting to issue a sojourning minute, which is then conveyed to the Clerk of the new meeting. Upon acceptance of the Friend as a Sojourning member, the Clerk of the new meeting will inform the Clerk of the home meeting. Sojourning members are considered fully participating members and may serve the new meeting in whatever ways are fitting. However, the primary financial responsibility of these members will remain with their home meeting, and they will also be counted in their home meeting’s statistical report. Sojourning status ends when the Sojourner leaves and the Clerk of the new meeting notifies the home meeting. Friends who find that their stay is longer than two years should seriously consider transferring their membership.

Transfer of Membership
It is recommended that a member who moves away from his or her monthly meeting seek a new meeting where he or she can assume full responsibilities of membership. When such a meeting is found, the Friend will ask the home meeting to issue a certificate of transfer. Upon verifying that the applicant is a member, the home meeting’s Committee for Ministry and Counsel brings the request before the monthly meeting for approval. Once issued, the certificate of transfer is conveyed to the Clerk of the new monthly meeting, where it should be referred to the Committee for Ministry and Counsel for review. When prepared to do so, the Committee for Ministry and Counsel brings forward the request to the monthly meeting. Upon approval, the Friend is recorded as a member of the new meeting, and the other meeting is notified of this action. Until this is done, the Friend remains a member of the other meeting. The new monthly meeting should appoint one or more Friends to welcome the transferred member.

Termination of Membership
Membership in the Religious Society of Friends can be terminated in cases of (a) resignation, (b) loss of interest in membership, or (c) disownment, each of which is explained below. Termination of membership becomes effective only when a record to this effect is made in the minutes of the monthly meeting of which that person is a member. One whose membership has been discontinued and who desires to be reinstated may be received into membership in accordance with the procedure for admitting new members.

Resignation
A member wishing to resign his or her membership should address a letter of resignation to the Clerk of the monthly meeting. The Clerk should refer the letter to the Committee for Ministry and Counsel. Normally, a resignation should not be accepted until after a visit (or exchange of correspondence) to inquire sensitively into the matter. If the member does not re-consider, the Committee for Ministry and Counsel should report this to the meeting, and the meeting should release that Friend from membership. The Clerk should inform the former member in writing of the action.

Loss of Interest in Membership
Membership entails participation in the life of one’s monthly meeting as a spiritual community. Meetings and their members share a mutual commitment to each other’s spiritual wellbeing. When Friends become concerned about a member who has not attended meeting for worship or communicated with the meeting, the Committee for Ministry and Counsel should contact him or her, expressing the meeting’s care and loving concern. Friends should seek through the grace of God and the spirit of divine love to restore this Friend to regular fellowship with the community and to provide assistance and support, if possible. In some cases, it may be necessary for Friends to approach the individual repeatedly. If, after sincere and diligent effort, restoration of interest in the meeting is unsuccessful, the monthly meeting may adopt a minute removing him or her from membership. The meeting should, if possible, inform the individual of this action.

Disownment
A member whose conduct or publicly expressed views repeatedly undermine Friends’ testimonies should be labored with lovingly and patiently for as long as there is reasonable hope of restoring unity with the fellowship. No judgment should be placed hastily or in the spirit of condemnation. Monthly meetings, however, have authority to record a minute of disunity with such a person’s actions.

In rare and exceptional circumstances, the meeting also has the authority to terminate a person’s membership through disownment. This process begins when the Committee for Ministry and Counsel brings forward to the monthly meeting a minute justifying a recommendation of disownment. If the monthly meeting agrees to proceed with the recommendation, the member should be promptly notified of the charges in writing and should be given an opportunity to present his or her case to the meeting at a called meeting for business devoted exclusively to this matter. The monthly meeting should assure itself that all possible steps to aid the member’s return to unity with the meeting have been taken, remembering that all persons are subject to error and that love and forgiveness may restore unity. After careful consideration, but without undue delay, the meeting may approve a minute terminating membership. In that case, a copy of the minute should be delivered to the individual along with notification of the right to appeal. A disowned person is released from the rights and responsibilities of membership; however, disownment does not mean a severing of all relationship between the meeting and the disowned person. Friends are encouraged to treat this person with loving kindness.

Appeals
If anyone believes that the monthly meeting has rendered an unjust judgment against him or her, that person may appeal to the quarterly meeting. The individual making the appeal should promptly notify the Clerk of the quarterly meeting and the Clerk of the monthly meeting. The quarterly meeting is then to refer the case to a suitable committee, excluding Friends from the monthly meeting involved. The monthly meeting should appoint a committee to represent it in the appeals process and should provide the quarterly meeting’s appeals committee with copies of all minutes having a bearing on the case. The appeals committee should meet with both parties, prayerfully consider the case, and report its recommendation to the following quarterly meeting. The quarterly meeting shall consider the recommendation, confirm or reverse the original judgment, or return the case to the monthly meeting for further consideration. Care should be taken to inform the person making the appeal and the monthly meeting of the decision, either of which, if dissatisfied, may appeal to the yearly meeting for further hearing. In the case of such an appeal, the yearly meeting shall in like manner refer the appeal to a suitable committee, excluding Friends from the quarterly meeting involved. This committee shall meet with the individual and representatives from the monthly meeting and the quarterly meeting, have access to all relevant minutes, and make a recommendation to the yearly meeting. The yearly meeting will then uphold or reverse the original decision, and yearly meeting’s decision will be final. At either level of appeal, parties may agree to accept the judgment of the appeals committee and not bring the matter before the entire meeting body.
Youth Membership

Friends’ communities rest on a principle of equality and on the worth of every individual. We value and welcome the young people who attend our meetings and participate in the lives of our communities. At the same time, our faith rests on deep personal and individual experience, and membership in the Religious Society of Friends and in a particular monthly meeting calls for a serious commitment. One person cannot make this commitment for another, and a caregiver cannot make this commitment for a young child. In order to accommodate both of these spiritual insights, Ohio Valley Yearly Meeting presents the following procedures as a model to consider. These procedures recognize both youth membership and adult membership and outline a process for transition to adult membership. Regardless of a Friend’s age, the term youth membership as used here is understood as membership requested by another on that Friend’s behalf, while the term adult membership is understood as membership requested by that Friend directly.

Members who are parents or those with parental responsibility intending to bring up a child in accordance with Friends’ faith and practice may request youth membership for the child. Monthly meetings may accept minor children as youth members at the request of one or both of their parents or guardians. The Committee for Ministry and Counsel should approach members who are new parents and parents requesting transfer of membership and ask if they would like to request youth membership for their children. Likewise, the membership clearness process for new members who are parents should include the children in the discussion of membership. When the monthly meeting accepts a child into youth membership, the child will also be considered a youth member of the relevant quarterly meeting and of Ohio Valley Yearly Meeting.

Children must ultimately make their own decision about adult membership. Youth members may request transition to adult membership at any time they feel ready to do so, by writing a simple letter to the Committee for Ministry and Counsel. Ohio Valley Yearly Meeting recommends that monthly meetings appoint membership clearness committees for youth members seeking transition to adult membership, following the same procedures set forth above for new membership.

To help prepare children for making this decision, the meeting should teach children about the meaning and responsibilities of membership. This process includes teaching children how to enter into waiting worship and how to participate in the Spirit-led Quaker business process, giving them opportunities to accept responsibilities such as participation on committees as they are able, and encouraging them to participate in youth groups associated with quarterly meetings, Ohio Valley Yearly Meeting, and Friends General Conference.

When parents or other adult Friends sense that a young person may be ready for adult membership, they should encourage the youth member to consider taking this step. The Committee for Ministry and Counsel should send a letter to each youth member around age 16, expressing appreciation for the young person’s gifts and growing spiritual maturity and encouraging him or her to consider whether the time is right to request adult membership. Ministry and Counsel should continue to send letters to the youth member every two or three years between the ages of 16 and 25. The youth member should be asked to make a decision by his or her 25th birthday.

If a youth member has not requested adult membership by age 25, youth membership status ends, and the monthly meeting will minute that action. Should a youth member of any age inform the meeting that he or she does not wish to remain a member of the Religious Society of Friends, Ministry and Counsel is advised to seek discernment regarding the appropriate course of action in that individual case. However, if the youth member is clear about resignation, the monthly meeting will minute that the individual’s youth membership has ended. These young people should be warmly assured that they are welcome to continue as active attenders, that they may at any time request membership, and that the meeting will continue to support them with loving care.

Friends recognize that monthly meetings may discern alternative procedures concerning membership of children. Whatever procedures are adopted should reflect Friends’ sense of loving concern and responsibility for children, as well as our belief in the value of raising children as part of a spiritual community.

Recorded Ministers 51

Some monthly meetings record gifts of ministry. Among the many possible avenues are travelling in the ministry, speaking publicly, teaching, or other service. Recording a Friend’s gifts of ministry implies that a person has submitted to God’s will and to the discernment of their faith community. Recorded ministers accept the sacred responsibility to continue to exercise the gift as God intended with the aid and support of their faith community. The process of recording gifts of ministry begins when a monthly meeting forms a clearness committee for the purpose of determining whether or not someone has a call to ministry. A recorded minister should meet at least annually with a support committee associated with the monthly meeting for ongoing clearness and nurture, and to help discern whether the call to ministry continues or if the recording should be laid down.

When a meeting does not formally record gifts of ministry, it remains the responsibility of the meeting to nurture and support all members’ gifts.

Ecclesiastical Endorsement 52

Some Friends may request an ecclesiastical endorsement as a professional qualification. In such cases, it is the responsibility of the monthly meeting to review the professional requirements and the Friend’s qualifications. When a meeting unites in an ecclesiastical endorsement, it has a responsibility to provide ongoing nurture and support of the Friend and to regularly review and renew the endorsement.

In addition to the meeting reviewing professional requirements and the Friend’s qualifications, the meeting should also discern with them whether they uphold Quaker values in their work, and whether the Friend is a member and intends to continue to remain connected to the meeting.

Letter of Introduction

A member of the monthly meeting may have occasion to travel and may wish to make contact with other members of the Society of Friends. The monthly meeting clerk may write a letter of introduction stating that the person is a member in good standing. The letter may also convey love from the Meeting in those visited by the traveler. This letter may be presented by the traveler to those Friends whom she or he may visit.

52 Section approved at annual sessions in June 2018
Traveling Minute

When Friends feel called to religious service beyond their own monthly meeting, or to visit the families therein, they should first lay the matter before their monthly meeting, stating so far as can be foreseen, the whole nature of the proposed service. If the monthly meeting feels free to unite with the concern, it shall make a minute to that effect and furnish the Friends with a copy thereof.

When the service is directed outside of the Friend’s own quarterly meeting or yearly meeting, the quarterly meeting or yearly meeting (or its Executive Committee) should be informed of the concern. If the quarterly meeting or yearly meeting approves, it should endorse the monthly meeting’s minute, or issue a minute by its own clerks, indicating its approval.

After the accomplishment of such services, the Meetings which have granted the minutes should be promptly notified and their documents returned to them without delay. Friends returning minutes should report on their visits for the information and encouragement of the Meetings which have supported them in their concerns.

Any Meeting which grants minutes for travel should take care that, as far as possible, the service is not hindered for lack of sufficient funds.

Clerks of Meetings should recognize and endorse the traveling minute carried by a visiting Friend.

Intervisitation

The membership of a meeting may be stimulated to greater faithfulness by the visits of members of other meetings, who often bring valuable spiritual insights. It may also be helpful to a meeting if its members, individually or in groups, visit other Meetings for Worship.

Committees

As soon as practicable after committees are appointed, the first person named should call the committee together to choose its officers and plan to carry out the duties of its appointment. All standing committees should meet regularly.

A period of worship at the opening and closing of a committee meeting or a Meeting for Business will be found to deepen the unity of the group assembled.

Historically, monthly meetings had separate committees for overseers and for ministers and elders. More recently, these have frequently been combined into a single committee with a variety of titles.

Committee on Ministry and Counsel

Duties

The direct responsibility of this committee is to foster the spiritual life of our Meetings for Worship. This responsibility must be borne in humility of spirit, with confidence that the power of God working in us will give us the ability to lead our members to greater consecration in worship and vocal ministry and will also open to us new avenues of usefulness.

Though vocal ministry serves an important purpose, we must be constantly mindful that the opportunity for silent communion with God is the basis on which our meetings are held. Should this quiet period be unduly limited by excess of vocal expression, this committee should call attention to our need for silent worship, and continue its efforts until the meetings afford a satisfactory opportunity for individual worship. It should also advise those who may be inclined to speak unacceptably, or at undue length, or with too great frequency, with prompt and loving counsel.

The committee should be mindful that there are differences in mental training, fluency of expression and power of interpretation. None should hesitate because of inexperience, for the spirit of the message is more than the form, and the example of one struggling to be faithful in a difficult task may be more helpful than the most polished address. The committee should be watchful that an experienced speaker does not speak with such frequency that the Meeting comes to look on that person as its minister. All messages should be adapted to the spiritual needs of those present. This cannot be the case unless those who undertake to speak are earnest seekers of God’s purpose. Since the effect of a message depends much upon its timeliness, those who feel prompted to speak should make this point a matter of thought, that their utterance may be in season and in harmony with the spirit of the Meeting. This is of special importance in a large gathering, where many accustomed to speak are present.

Quiet and reverent assembling is a suitable beginning of a Meeting for Worship. The committee should see that this condition prevails.

By their example, the Committee of Ministry and Counsel is responsible for inspiring members to faithfulness in attending meetings and in responding to Divine promptings. They should be ready to counsel and assist those who show a desire to be of service.

Reports
It is recommended that reports concerning the spiritual condition and needs of the Meetings for Worship under its care, together with an account of its own efforts to meet those needs, be made at least once a year by each Committee of Ministry and Counsel. The committee’s annual report should be made to the monthly meeting and, after approval, should also be forwarded to its quarterly meeting and the yearly meeting. This annual report is known as the State of the Meeting report.

In preparing reports the committee may be aided in its deliberations by considering some or all of the following questions, though definite answers to them need not be forwarded.

1. Does your Meeting assemble quietly and reverently?
2. Do most of your resident members attend and apparently find the Meeting valuable?
3. Are members disposed to assist according to their ability in making meetings profitable?
4. Do your members feel a lack of vocal ministry where little or none exists? How do they think this lack can be met?
5. Is care taken to keep the basic principles of Friends’ worship clearly before your members? What effort does your committee make to help the membership understand and appreciate a silent meeting?
6. Do you have too much or too little vocal expression? Is such expression helpful and acceptable to the meeting? What steps do you take to strengthen the vocal ministry?
7. Are you careful to protest your meeting for worship from irrelevant addresses lacking spiritual value?
8. What is the most pressing need which you feel for the meeting for worship?
9. Are the Queries read regularly and carefully?

Reports may cover the following:
1. General condition of the spiritual life of the meetings for worship and business.
2. Apparent attitude of members toward meetings without vocal ministry.
3. Earnestness of members in assisting to make meetings helpful.
4. Amount and apparent influence of vocal ministry.
5. Conditions and activities affecting the life of the meeting.

Principles for Guidance

The principles stated in the section on Religious Expression on pages 14-16 of the Discipline [note: in the current draft the contents of this section are divided between “Meeting for Worship” on pages 2-3 and “Individual Spiritual Disciplines” on page 5] are commended for the guidance of committee members in the performance of their duties. They should be read as a whole or in part at each stated meeting of the committee. It may frequently be desirable to consider certain divisions of the subject very carefully rather than to review the entire subject.

Committee of Overseers

As indicated previously, the duties of this committee may be assigned to the Committee on Ministry and Counsel.

It is important for the best interest of each meeting that the Committee of Overseers be selected with due regard to fitness for the specific duties expected of them. They should represent the active, concerned elements of the meeting, and should feel a responsibility for the welfare of the Society. Age should not be a determining factor in appointment, but only men and women of good judgment and real interest in their fellow members should serve in this important capacity.

Duties

Pastoral care of the membership is the essential responsibility of the Committee of Overseers. It should encourage all members to a faithful performance of their duties (See “Meaning & Responsibilities of Membership” on page 28).

The committee should endeavor to be acquainted with all members and to keep informed about various needs for encouragement or assistance.

The Overseers should seek to have all members work cooperatively for the strengthening of the Meeting. If a member repeatedly disregards Friends’ principles and/or the obligations of membership, Overseers, in a spirit of loving concern, should counsel with the member and endeavor to effect a change in the relationship with the Meeting which will be in keeping with Friends’ ways. If their labors are unavailing, they should bring the matter to the attention of the monthly meeting with a report of their efforts (See “Termination of Membership” on page 30).

Overseers are advised to give specific attention to the education of our youth toward an understanding of our principles and testimonies.

The Committee of Overseers or a committee appointed by them is responsible for implementing the procedure for membership as stated in the Section on “Application Process” on page 28.

To those who attend Meetings for Worship, manifest an interest in our principles, and might with profit to themselves and the Meeting become members of our religious Society, it is recommended that overseers and other concerned Friends give loving attention with a view to their becoming members.
Friends should also take pains to make people feel welcome and should find appropriate ways of letting people know about the Society of Friends.

The marriage of a member is a matter which should come to the attention of the Committee of Overseers, whether or not it is accomplished under care of the Meeting. It is recommended that if the Friendly procedure is desired when one of our members is to marry a non-member, the Committee of Overseers should visit the non-member and then make recommendation to the monthly meeting as to the propriety of procedure. They should also extend to the non-member an invitation to unite with our Society, for in this way our body may be strengthened and the religious harmony of the family preserved.

If the Friendly procedure has not been observed, the Committee of Overseers should at once visit the newly founded family and ascertain whether the member is in sympathy with Friends’ testimonies and expects to attend our meeting.

The Committee should also learn whether the non-member would like to join our Society, at the same time extending to him or her an invitation to attend our Meetings for Worship. The committee should report the result to monthly meeting.

Concern for Members’ Needs

There have been some times in the Quaker experience when some members and their families have need added consideration and compassion from the Society because their commitment to Quaker principles has resulted in imprisonment or other forms of hardship. When this need surfaced, Meetings frequently named a Committee for Sufferings to serve as advisors and to make sure physical, emotional and spiritual needs were met.

There are still occasions when a Committee for Sufferings may be appropriate. Meetings should be sensitive to the persuasions of their membership and ready to release individuals to witness in whatever manner they feel called. This may mean taking on the care of a family, giving public support to the witness, or simply helping the individual to clarify priorities.

When an individual wishes to clarify or rethink a position in relation to Friends’ principles, a Committee for Clearness may be suggested by members of the Meeting or requested by the individual. The Committee of Overseers assumes the responsibility of naming the committee, in consultation with the individual concerned.

Areas in which clearness may be sought could include consideration of marriage, problems in an existing marriage, stands to be taken on public issues, unusual changes in employment, tension between members, or any condition which signals an emotional, spiritual or financial change in one’s life.

Members of such a committee should take care to exercise discretion in revealing confidences which may be shared with them.

Marriage Procedure53

(Read the Section on Close Relationships)

The covenant of marriage is solemn in its obligation, fundamental in its social significance, and should be lifelong in its duration. When a Meeting assumes oversight of a marriage, it makes an enduring commitment to support and strengthen that marriage. The Meeting is asked not only to approve the wedding and see it performed in good order but also to care for and share in the marriage and help in its success with advice and counsel. Friends consider that asking a Meeting to take a marriage under its care places responsibilities on both the couple and the Meeting.

For its proper accomplishment under the care of our Society, the following procedure is recommended:

1. The couple proposing marriage should communicate their intentions to the monthly meeting under whose care the wedding will be held by writing a letter, signed by them both, requesting the meeting’s approval for marriage.
2. The Ministry & Counsel Committee will then name a Clearness Committee to meet with the couple. When one or both members of the couple is a member of another religious community, an invitation may be extended to them to participate in the clearness process.
3. The Clearness Committee will meet one or more times with the couple to determine their readiness for marriage. The couple is part of the committee and participates in this discernment.
4. If the Clearness Committee recommends approval, this is presented to the next monthly meeting for Business for its approval. The monthly meeting should approve that the marriage be carried out.
5. Two or more Friends are appointed by the monthly meeting to have care and oversight of the wedding. Proposed names for the Oversight Committee may be brought forward by the couple.
6. The wedding is held under the care of the Meeting.
7. This Oversight Committee shall report to the next monthly meeting concerning the following: the observance of good order in the wedding, delivery of the marriage certificate or duplicate to the recorder of the monthly meeting for recording, compliance with legal requirements and the names assumed or retained by the couple.

Clearness Committee

The Clearness Committee for a proposed marriage was originally intended to determine if the couple was clear of any obstacles to marriage. It inquired into the character and obligations of the couple, compliance with the provisions of state laws, and to see that the rights and feelings of any children were taken into account. Contemporary committees assume a broader role: searching deeply into the relationship of the couple and helping them determine their readiness for the commitments of marriage. If one or both of the partners has been divorced, the committee should determine that the special challenges of re-marriage have been carefully considered.

The committee should help the couple explore questions and areas of their relationship that they perhaps have not considered. Such a procedure is intended to enable the couple to understand as fully as possible the new relationship into which they may enter, as well as to identify their own expectations and capabilities.

The committee obviously cannot present all of the possibilities of a marriage to a couple, nor can all potential problems be considered, but deep searching in a spirit of love and tender seeking can help the couple find a better understanding of the roles and responsibilities of marriage.

Marriage of Two Non-Members

When two non-members request oversight of their marriage, the Ministry & Counsel Committee should inquire into the reasons for the request. If the Committee approves the Meeting’s assuming the responsibility, they shall bring their recommendation to monthly meeting. If the monthly meeting agrees to the oversight of the marriage, a Clearness Committee shall be appointed. This Committee shall proceed in the manner of Friends, with the same care as when one or both parties are members of the Society of Friends.

Marriage Ceremony

When a marriage has been authorized and the meeting is gathered at which it is to be accomplished, it is advised that a period of silent worship be observed, during which the parties to the marriage should rise, and taking each other by the hand, each should declare in words to this effect: “In the presence of God and before these, our friends, I take (you/thee), _____, to be my (husband/wife/spouse), promising, with Divine assistance, to be unto (you/thee) a loving and faithful (husband/wife/spouse), as long as we both shall live.”

After these declarations, the marriage certificate should be signed by the couple and read by someone from the Oversight Committee. Worship should continue and the meeting closed by the Oversight Committee.

Changes may take place in wedding forms and procedures with the approval of the Oversight Committee. The marriage certificate may be modified and the wedding may be planned to suit the needs of the couple.

Form of Certificate

The form of the certificate may follow one of these examples:

Traditional Certificate Example:
Whereas, A.B, of ____, child of C.B. and D.B., of ____, and E.F., child of G.F. and H.F., of ____, having declared their intentions of marriage to each other to ____ Monthly Meeting of the Religious Society of Friends, held at ____, according to the good order used among Friends, their proposed marriage was approved by that Meeting.

Now this is to certify to whom it may concern, that for the accomplishment of their intentions, this ___ day of the ___ month, in the year of our Lord _____, their intention to marry each other, to the … Monthly Meeting of the Religious Society of Friends.

Their proposed marriage was approved by that Meeting.

On the … day of the … month of the year …, during an appointed Meeting for Worship, R.B. and C.S. declared that they took one another in marriage, promising with Divine assistance to be loving and faithf spouses to one another as long as they both shall live.

R. and C. in an outward and visible confirmation of the marriage then signed this certificate.

We who have signed this certificate have witnessed this marriage while worshipping together.
Approved in OVYM sessions, June 17, 2017

Burial Grounds

It is directed that two or more Friends be appointed by Monthly or Preparative Meetings to have the care of our burying grounds and see that interments are made in accordance with the rules approved by the Meeting which owns the grounds.

Careful marking of all graves for purposes of identification should be practiced and records thereof kept. Our principles of moderation and simplicity should be strictly observed in marking graves; in accordance with these principles, Monthly and Preparative Meetings should make suitable regulations regarding gravestones.

Meeting Funds

Monthly or Preparative Meetings should raise from their membership and from other sources a fund sufficient to meet their responsibilities, to expand their interests, to care for their property, and to provide for their obligations to the quarterly meeting and yearly meeting.

The Treasurer of the yearly meeting shall determine the proportionate share of the yearly meeting budget for each local meeting, and shall so notify each meeting.

Meeting Trusts and Property Titles

Yearly, Quarterly, Monthly and Preparative Meetings are advised to require annual reports of the income and disbursements of all trusts and of the investment of the principal thereof, including the status of titles of Meeting properties and burial grounds vested in the Trustees, who are to keep in their records accurate statements of the terms of the trusts held by them for the benefit of the meeting or of the Society at large.

Business meetings are cautioned to see that timely care is taken for the renewal of trusts. They are exhorted to be diligent and particular as to the careful investment of trust funds. The assistance of the Executive Committee may be sought if difficulties arise.

Incorporation

To avoid lapse resulting from the death of trustees holding title to meeting properties and trusts, it is advised that such titles and trusts be held by corporations when practicable. The Executive Committee will advise with any meeting contemplating incorporation.

Meeting Records

All Meetings for Business should keep full and correct records of their transactions in convenient form for reference. An accurate record of the membership of each monthly meeting should be kept which should include all births, marriages, removals and deaths occurring among members.

A recorder or statistician should be appointed to carry out these duties and the Meeting should furnish suitable books and provide proper places in which to preserve the records. The recorder should also be responsible for forwarding to the Executive Committee of the yearly meeting and Friends General Conference a regular updating (at least yearly) of membership with current addresses. When Meeting records cease to be actively used, they should become the property of the yearly meeting, and shall be turned over to it for safekeeping.

54 See Annual Statistical Report.

The Quarterly Meeting

The Quarterly Meeting is designed to bring together for inspiration and counsel a larger group, and to consider more varied interests than any single meeting embraces. It is composed of constituent monthly meetings, each of which shall appoint representatives to attend it.

Its form of organization should be similar to that of the monthly meeting. It is to receive and forward reports from monthly meetings to the yearly meeting, and to appoint representatives thereto. It may hold property and trusts and appoint for specific services committees over which it shall have original and final jurisdiction. Its most helpful function should be to aid and encourage the monthly meetings composing it to greater interest and service, and to give its members an increasing vision of the truth. It should be diligent in seeking opportunities to gather together groups which may be organized into meetings and should always be ready to help monthly meetings whenever they ask for advice or assistance.

The Yearly Meeting

The Yearly Meeting shall be composed of its constituent quarterly meeting or half-yearly meetings and monthly meetings. Each monthly meeting shall appoint representatives to attend sessions of the yearly meeting. These representatives shall perform whatever duties the yearly meeting or the meeting which appoints them may assign. It is advised that they make reports to their respective monthly meetings of important action taken by the yearly meeting. All members of constituent monthly meetings are also members of the yearly meeting and have the same privileges as the representatives. The yearly meeting shall provide for the appointment of necessary officers, including clerks, and treasurer.

The yearly meeting may organize its work through the appointment of committees necessary for the effective carrying out of its concerns. It is cautioned against becoming over-organized and thus expending in merely maintaining a mechanical system, energies which should be conserved for the advancement of truth.

It shall determine, annual, a budget necessary for its expenses and assign to each monthly meeting its quota for collection based on total membership.

It shall receive written reports from its committees and from its constituent meetings, signed by the proper officers. It shall review the state of the Society and consider communications addressed to it. It shall hear and act upon the concerns of its members pertaining to the work and influence of the Society of Friends.

It should exercise a general oversight and care of subordinate meetings in things pertaining to the welfare of the Society in general.

The yearly meeting shall provide for the due consideration of epistles and of minutes of Friends from other Friends yearly meetings.

All letters and papers addressed to the yearly meeting, regarding which the clerk desires counsel, may be referred to the Executive Committee, which should consider them and report whether it is advisable to have them presented for the consideration of the yearly meeting.
It is advised that the yearly meeting have always available information concerning its constituent Meetings, so that it can aid committees in their work, give a knowledge of conditions and extend sympathetic help to the smaller Meetings which need encouragement and assistance from the larger body.

It shall appoint representatives for participating in the work of Friends General Conference and of Friends World Committee for Consultation, American Friends Service Committee and Friends Committee on National Legislation, and to other committees as the need arises.

The Executive Committee

Duties

This committee shall transact business for the yearly meeting between its annual sessions in all cases where the welfare of our Society makes this desirable, and shall carry out instructions given it by the yearly meeting.

In general its duties should include printing and distributing Friendly literature, furnishing forms to monthly meetings for use in keeping records of members, transfers, births, marriages and deaths, maintaining a current list of members with their addresses, endeavoring to extend the knowledge of our principles, rendering advice and assistance to Meetings in the matter of property and trusts, upon their request, and to individuals who feel the need of support in maintaining our testimonies. This Committee shall keep in close and sympathetic touch with other committees appointed by the yearly meeting in all cases when that body is not in session, but it shall not make changes in the Book of Discipline or issue any statement of faith.

Meetings

The Committee may fix its own times of meeting, except that its clerk shall call special meetings upon the request of three members of the Committee. The clerk of each monthly meeting as well as appointed representatives should be notified of each committee meeting. It is advised that important action be taken only after the judgment of the committee has been obtained.

Minutes

The committee shall keep full and complete minutes and render to the yearly meeting reports of all business transacted.

Funds

Drafts may be drawn against the treasury of the yearly meeting under proper authorization.

Method of Appointment

Each monthly meeting shall appoint for a term of two years by June 1 on each year, one or more members to represent it on this committee. Monthly meetings appointing two or more representatives shall arrange the terms of office so that half expire each year. The clerk and treasurer of the yearly meeting shall also be members of the Executive Committee by reason of their appointments. The yearly meeting shall, every fifth year, recommend the proper size of the Executive Committee and the proportion of its membership among the monthly meetings, basing its judgment upon the statistical reports received.
The yearly meeting, if it wishes to do so, may appoint members at large in addition to those named by the monthly meetings.

Nominating Committee

The Executive Committee shall act as the nominating committee of the yearly meeting to nominate all officers, including the clerks and members of committees of the yearly meeting. The Committee shall meet for this purpose after appointment and at least one month before yearly meeting begins in that year and at other times as necessary.

Annual Statistical Report

It is directed that annual reports shall be made by the monthly meetings to the quarterly meetings and from the quarterly meetings to the yearly meeting, containing all needed information on a form provided by the yearly meeting for the purpose. These forms will be prepared and supplied by the Executive Committee.

The information asked for should include data as to membership (Births, Deaths, Admissions, Removals, etc.), First-day Schools, attenders of Friends Schools, changes in times and places of Meetings, care of record books, reading of queries, etc.

The information shall be for the fiscal year as established by the yearly meeting. The yearly meeting may from time to time ask for additional information not included on the form.

Queries

The queries invite Friends, both individually and as a meeting, to examine themselves periodically relative to the grounding principles that Friends have established. Faithful consideration of the queries in openness to the Spirit has been found to enrich the life of the meeting and its members.

Friends have found different ways to make use of the queries. Some read them as a starting point for personal inward reflection. Meetings may consider a query in a period of meditation and worship at the beginning of their business meetings. It is good practice to consider each query at least once a year. A meeting’s responses to the queries may provide a basis for writing its annual state of the meeting report. The presentation of the queries to the local meeting is the responsibility of the clerk unless assigned to a committee, such as Ministry and Counsel.

First Query
What is Quakerism or the Quaker way? What does that mean to me? What marks our meeting as Quaker?

Second Query
What does worship mean to me, and how do I worship? How does our meeting worship as a community?

Third Query
What helps me seek Divine guidance in business meeting? How does our meeting seek and follow the group’s spiritual discernment in our meetings for business?

55 Approved in OVYM sessions, June 17, 2017
Fourth Query
What spiritual disciplines enliven my spirit? How does our meeting facilitate spiritual growth?

Fifth Query
What binds me to my meeting community? What fosters mutual love and communion in our meeting? How does our meeting resolve conflicts when they arise?

Sixth Query
How do I seek to act with integrity? How do I follow the ever-opening pathway of Truth? How does my meeting help me to be faithful?

Seventh Query
How does simplicity guide my days? How does our meeting practice simplicity?

Eighth Query
How is my life a daily example of nonviolence? How does our meeting nurture peace in the wider community?

Ninth Query
How do I live in harmony with all creation? How does our meeting community exercise responsible stewardship?

Tenth Query
How do I affirm that of God in everyone? In what ways is our meeting an open and affirming community, welcoming to all? In what ways do we need to grow?

Eleventh Query
How have I fallen short in the past year? When has our meeting avoided doing things that are hard to do?

Twelfth Query
Where have I experienced the Divine Mystery in my life? How do we keep the Divine Spirit at the center of the life of our meeting?

Faith & Practice Revision
Proposals for change of discipline may originate in the monthly meeting, and if so, they should receive the approval of the quarterly meeting, and then be transmitted to the yearly meeting for final action; or they may originate in the annual sessions of the yearly meeting itself. In this case, final action may not be taken until the following year after the proposed change has appeared in the minutes of the yearly meeting or has been presented in a printed form for approval.
OTHER QUAKER ORGANIZATIONS

Over the course of the last hundred years, dozens of Quaker organizations have grown up to provide service to Friends and to promote Friends’ values in the wider world. OVYM has made financial contributions to many, and members of OVYM meetings were involved in many more. A few of the larger and more influential organizations are listed below. Further information about Quaker organizations can be found on their websites.

Friends General Conference

In 2015 there were 36 yearly meetings and associations in the U.S. and Canada. These are classified in five groups: Friends General Conference, Friends United Meeting, Evangelical Friends-International, Conservative Friends, and several independent yearly meetings. In addition, there is a small but significant number of meetings with no yearly meeting association. Ohio Valley Yearly Meeting is affiliated with Friends General Conference.

FGC emerged from several gatherings among Hicksite Quakers. These started in 1868 with the Biennial First Day School Conference. The Friends Union for Philanthropic Labor began meeting at the same time and in the same location in 1882 and the Friends Educational Conference in 1896. They formally joined together as the Friends General Conference in 1900 as a way of bringing Friends in the United States and Canada together across yearly meeting lines to share their experiences, exchange ideas and develop programs that nurture and stimulate the religious life of the Society of Friends in individual monthly meetings as well as the larger community of Friends.

Seven Hicksite yearly meetings were involved: Indiana (now known as Ohio Valley), Baltimore, Genesee, Illinois, New York, Ohio, and Philadelphia. In 2015, FGC had grown to an association of fourteen yearly meetings, supplemented with regional groups and individual meetings. Its stated purpose is, with Divine guidance, to nurture the spiritual vitality of the Religious Society of Friends by providing programs and services for Friends, meetings, and seekers.

The character and thrust of Friends General Conference has been largely determined by the conviction that the same Spirit that was revealed in the Scriptures can lead men and women today, that Quaker worship should be based on expectant waiting for Divine guidance, and that there is an enriching potential in theological diversity.

Being an association of Meetings, the Friends General Conference has no authority over its constituent Meetings, which fully retain their autonomy. Policy and the program planning of the Conference are determined by a Central Committee appointed by the member yearly meetings. Its annual Gatherings are not business meetings, but conferences to which all Friends are invited.

American Friends Service Committee

Refusal to participate in war has been an enduring Friends’ concern ever since George Fox said in 1651 that he “lived in the virtue of that life and power that took away the occasion of all wars.” Friends have maintained with consistency, and often with much suffering, the belief that the power of love and the spirit of justice are the only bases for resolving international disputes. World War I sharply questioned the validity of this testimony. Friends found themselves faced with the necessity for profound reconsideration and for active work in support of this great principle. Their most cogent argument was the fearless and impartial service to the victims of war. During the course of the struggle the vision and leadership of Rufus Jones brought together all branches and all types of Friends in the effort to convey help and a message of love to the people of Europe. This resulted in the founding of the American Friends Service Committee on April 30, 1917 by Friends representing several areas of Quakerism. They were deeply concerned for the spiritual values endangered by America’s entrance into the war, and to provide constructive, non-military service to young men who were conscientious objectors.

The work of the AFSC has evolved over the last century in response to changing conditions and to reflect the concerns and testimonies of Friends in the United States.

Friends World Committee for Consultation (FWCC)

Friends World Committee for Consultation was established by a minute of a World Conference of the Religious Society of Friends held at Swarthmore, Pennsylvania in 1937. The purpose of the Friends World Committee for Consultation is to encourage fellowship among all the branches of the Religious Society of Friends. To advance this goal, it publishes material of interest to all Quakers, encourages intervisitation, holds conferences and promotes Friends’ concerns.

Yearly meetings and similar organized groups of Friends throughout the world who are affiliated with FWCC send representatives to its World Plenary Meetings. A representative Interim Committee is appointed at each meeting to assist staff and officers of the organization’s world headquarters, located in London. In addition, Friends World Committee for Consultation has formed geographic sections, which have their own officers and staff to carry on regional concerns: Africa Section; Asia and West Pacific Section; European and Middle East Section; and Section of the Americas.

Quaker United Nations Office (QUNO)

The Friends World Committee for Consultation sponsored the Quaker United Nations Program in 1947. A unique role is played both in New York and Geneva by the Quaker House close to the offices of the United Nations, where delegates from opposing factions can meet informally and search for ways to reconcile their differences. QUNO staff also provide information to Friends about the U.N. and arrange for Friends and others to attend seminars and U.N. sessions so that they may better understand the work of this world organization.

Friends Committee on National Legislation (FCNL)

Founded in 1943 by a group of Friends gathered at Quaker Hill in Richmond, Indiana, the Friends Committee on National Legislation is the oldest religious lobby in Washington D.C. While the FNCL does not speak for all Friends in the United States, its policy-making body consists of appointees from worshipping bodies of Friends throughout the United States. It has long been and continues to be effective in presenting the viewpoints of Friends to members of Congress and to the executive branch of government.

Friends Journal

Quakers have been publishing fliers, pamphlets, and tracts since the 1650s. Periodicals became particularly important to the North American Friends in the 19th century as Quakers settled across the continent and visitation by traveling ministers became more difficult. With the separations of the 1820s and later, Friends in different branches produced publications to serve their own members. Two of these were published by Friends in the two Philadelphia Yearly Meetings: The Friends Intelligencer (Hicksite) and The Friend (Orthodox). After these meetings reunited in 1955, Friends Journal was created as an independent organization, “for the purpose of promoting religious concerns of the Religious Society of Friends and the education and information of its members and others by means of the written or spoken word.” In 2015, the Journal had readers in all 50 states and more than 40 other countries.

Quaker Earthcare Witness (QEW)

Originally named Friends Committee on Unity with Nature, this organization was established in 1987. A workshop was held at the FGC Gathering that year on the importance of living in harmony with the earth and with all of God’s creation. Its name was officially changed to Quaker Earthcare Witness (QEW) in 2003. Although it started at an FGC gathering, the organization works with all Quaker branches.

QEW’s purpose is to call on all people to live in right relationship with all Creation, recognizing that the entire world is interconnected and is a manifestation of God. The organization works to integrate into the beliefs and practices of the Religious Society of Friends the Truth that God’s Creation is to be respected, protected, and held in reverence in its own right; and the Truth that human aspirations for peace and justice depend upon restoring the earth’s ecological integrity. It promotes these Truths by being patterns and examples, by communicating its message, and by providing spiritual and material support to those engaged in the compelling task of transforming our relationship to the earth.
A BRIEF HISTORY

The Beginning of Quakerism

The Religious Society of Friends originated in England at the time of the Puritan Revolution (about 1642-1660). There was a growing sense of personal religious independence among the people that resulted in the temporary overthrow of the monarchy and the installation of Oliver Cromwell as Lord Protector. Dissatisfaction with the established church resulted in many quick-growing, but often short-lived, sects and in a large number of restless, searching spirits.

George Fox, one of the first Quakers, was of this seeking type of mind. Born in 1624, he began when nineteen years old a solitary, spiritual quest for Truth. He recorded in his Journal that at last in 1646, “when all my hopes in…all men were gone, so that I had nothing outwardly to help me, nor could tell what to do, then, Oh then, I heard a voice which said, ‘There is one, even Christ Jesus, that can speak to thy condition,’ and, when I heard it, my heart did leap for joy.”

In 1647 Fox began to preach, convincing many people, and in 1648 a whole community in Nottinghamshire accepted his message and, associating together, called themselves Children of the Light, the earliest name by which Friends were known. From this time on, the number of his followers grew rapidly.

Puritan ministers then taught that God’s revelation to humanity lay only in the Bible and in the work of the historic Christ and that, until the judgment at the Second Advent, God would not speak again. Fox proclaimed that God speaks directly to each human soul through a present, living experience of revelation, the Inward Light of Christ, requiring no human mediator to translate God’s meaning to the individual.

George Fox was a powerful personality. In The Beginnings of Quakerism, William Braithwaite described him as having “combined in a singular degree the burning zeal of the enthusiast with the magnetic force of a born leader of men” and such was the power of the truth he preached, “that a single man or woman living in the spirit of the apostles and prophets would shake all the country…for ten miles round.”

He soon attracted a group of young men and women who became inspired preachers of this new religious force and were called Publishers of Truth. These were joined by other earnest men and women. They engaged in the difficult work of spreading the movement, traveling in twos and threes throughout the length and breadth of England, extending their labors also into Wales, Scotland, and Ireland, although often hindered by imprisonment and persecution. Undismayed by every sort of difficulty, they fed the inward spiritual flame of widely separated groups, stimulating their zeal, holding them in the bond of group-consciousness, and providing for them a channel of communication.

Margaret Fell, often called the Mother of Quakerism, was an early convert and an equally powerful personality. Swarthmoor Hall, her home, became a center of activity, a stable focal point giving the movement a sense of community and strength. She set up a central fund to help those on long preaching trips, in prison, in isolated meetings, and to promote the establishment of women’s meetings. Eleven years after the death of her husband, Judge Thomas Fell, she and George Fox were married.

The powerful preaching of these leaders was supported by the daily life of the first Friends. Along with an intense religious fervor there ran a life of practical righteousness. Justice, temperance, commercial honesty, and observance of all civil laws that did not violate their conscience were vitally important matters. Braithwaite wrote, “None could dispute the validity of a Christianity which resulted in consistent and Christ-touched lives. In such lives, amid all their imperfections, the Inward Light was justified of its children.”

A deep realization of the equality of all persons before God led to the early recognition of the spiritual gifts of women as equal to men and the acceptance of their public preaching. Among other behaviors, it brought about the use of “the ‘plain language and Friends’ refusal to remove their hats in the presence of their social superiors, customs which caused frequent persecution. Still greater suffering resulted from their refusal to take oaths or to pay tithes for the upkeep of the state church.

With the restoration of the monarchy in 1660, the Anglican Church was re-established as the official religion of the state and no other worship was permitted. An era of persistent persecution was inaugurated for all religious non-conformists. Friends endured long imprisonments, disastrous fines, and cruel treatment. Their meetings were often broken up and meetinghouses destroyed. But because their consciences assured them that resistance to an unjust law was no sin, they continued their way of worship openly and bravely in spite of every effort to stop them. In some places, when all adult Friends were in jail, the children held meetings alone.

This faithfulness in persisting according to their religious conviction, with no evasion of the penalties of the law, was an important factor in finally winning legal recognition for liberty of conscience and religious toleration. But for the Society of Friends itself, the persecution had some unfortunate results: it restricted the itinerant services of the Publishers of Truth, isolated meetings, and hastened the necessity for organizing what had been a glorious creative movement into a sect.

From 1667 on, George Fox was active in helping to organize the system of monthly, quarterly, and yearly meetings and in arranging methods of procedure therein. Women’s business meetings were set up in addition to men’s. A Meeting of Ministers and a Meeting for Sufferings (a yearly meeting Executive Committee) were established.

The earliest concerns of these business meetings were to provide for the poor and prisoners, to check the vagaries of individual judgment, to admonish delinquents, to provide for carrying on work at home and covering the expenses of ministers traveling beyond the seas, and to keep accurate records. While the discipline thus set up was no equivalent for the compelling power of widespread evangelism, it did foster well-ordered and noble lives.

Efforts at formulation of doctrine soon followed, and in this, Robert Barclay (1648-1690) and William Penn (1644-1718) were the foremost figures. Barclay’s most complete exposition was his Apology. His Quakerism was affected by current Puritan theology. The influence of their writings was so great as to be felt as late as the nineteenth century when the various separations occurred within the Society of Friends.

61 Braithwaite, ibid. p. 152.
A period of development into a sect was underway. Along with the formulation of doctrine there were growing experiments toward improving the social order. These included justice toward workmen and employees and refusal of election bribes. Efforts were made to reestablish the poor in business, along with plans for giving work to those in prison, the establishment of humane workhouses, and active concern for the treatment of the insane. Temperance and the question of slavery claimed the attention of Friends. In Pennsylvania and Rhode Island bold attempts were made to establish truly Christian commonwealths.

Friends in the American Colonies

As early as 1655 the New World had attracted Friends, and efforts were made during the following years to plant the seeds of Quakerism in Massachusetts, New York, and Virginia. In the latter two colonies there was some persecution, but the martyrs of Quakerism in America met their test in Massachusetts. Everything that the authorities could devise was tried to stop the publishing of Quaker Truth in this colony. Harrowing tortures were endured, many underwent punishment again and again, and four suffered death. After ten years of persecution, they succeeded in breaking down the intolerant laws.

During this period a haven was found in Rhode Island, where the first meeting in the New World had been established. This colony became the center of New England Quakerism. Its long line of Quaker Governors and men in public positions did eminent service in the political life of the colony until the time of the Revolutionary War.

A period of expansion followed George Fox’s visit to America in 1671-1673. Meetings were established in New York, Maryland, Virginia, and the Carolinas, and in greater numbers in New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

These last two colonies had been opened for settlement later than the others, but conditions were especially favorable. West Jersey was bought by a group of Friends in 1674 and in 1681 Pennsylvania was granted to William Penn, so that there Quakers had freedom and peace and unparalleled opportunity to try out their ability to conduct a Christian government. William Penn was a statesman of high order, an outstanding advocate of justice for Native Americans, and a champion of liberty of conscience. He designed a government based on his advanced ideas of civil and religious liberty and equality, which was a forerunner of that laid out in the Constitution of the United States. Friends maintained almost absolute control of Pennsylvania until 1740 and were a power for fifteen years longer, when measures to support the French and Indian War led most to resign from the Assembly.

The successful policy of Friends toward Native Americans was the outcome of their sense of justice and their conviction that before God all persons are equal, irrespective of their color. These principles slowly formed their attitude on another great question—that of slavery. In 1671 George Fox had advised giving slaves their freedom after a period of years. Philadelphia Yearly Meeting advised against the slave trade in 1696, and such sentiment grew slowly until 1758 when John Woolman made a moving plea for the liberty of slaves and began the great work of his life. He aroused Friends in both America and England, many of whom became influential factors and tireless workers until slavery was finally abolished.

Friends’ opposition to war largely took them out of public life, and this fact together with the increasing influence of Quietism caused a profound transformation in the Society. More and more Friends in the latter half of the 18th century withdrew from the outside world and centered upon perfecting their own spiritual lives, hedging their Society about with the rules and customs of a peculiar people. This preserved some valuable features, but it also brought a narrowing introspection that was fertile ground for controversy.

The Second Period of Quakerism

Early in the 19th century two very divergent tendencies could be seen within Quakerism. One was toward a zealous evangelicalism which was fostered by a number of prominent Quaker ministers, some of whom came over from England, and accelerated by the popular rise of the Methodist movement. The other was toward a reaffirmation of the Inward Light of Christ as a sufficient basis for faith. Job Scott, a saintly man and true mystic, and Elias Hicks, a prophetic minister, were the chief spokesmen for the latter.

The chasm grew steadily wider until 1827 when a separation occurred in Philadelphia Yearly Meeting. This tragedy, due to lack of historical knowledge, lack of spiritual understanding and lack of love for one another, was followed by withdrawals by one side or the other in many other meetings, forming so-called “Hicksite” and so-called “Orthodox” branches. Further separations occurred over the last 200 years, resulting in the fractured Society seen today.

Yet the 19th century did contain some advances in Quaker development. A great migration of Friends into new territory in the Midwest took place and new yearly meetings in Ohio, Indiana, Iowa and Illinois were established.

The retirement of Friends from public affairs also helped to stimulate their zeal for purely moral causes, such as the abolition of slavery, the welfare of African-Americans and Native Americans, the work for social morality, the suppression of liquor traffic, and prison reform.

The women’s rights movement grew out of the involvement of Quaker women in the anti-slavery movement. By lecturing extensively against slavery, they did much to break down the barrier against women speaking in public. Lucretia Mott, a Quaker minister and abolitionist, along with Mary Ann M’Clintock, Martha Coffin Wright, Jane Hunt, and Elizabeth Cady Stanton, called the Seneca Falls Convention in 1848, which marked the formal beginning of the organized crusade for the rights of women.

Education has been a deep concern of Friends from their earliest history, and monthly meeting schools, boarding schools and colleges have been established.

History of Ohio Valley Yearly Meeting

During the early 18th Century many Friends were attracted southward into Virginia and the Carolinas and some became involved in the institution of slavery. As a result of the labors of Francis Daniel Pastorius, Benjamin Lay, John Woolman, Anthony Benezet, and others, Friends came to believe slavery a curse; and slowly the conscience of the Society of Friends was awakened to the evil. Many Friends in the South decided to migrate to the slave-free lands in the Northwest Territory to begin a new life.

The migration to the Waynesville, Ohio area began in 1799 when Abijah O’Neal and his family left Bush River, South Carolina, and settled on some 3,000 acres on the east bank of the Little Miami River north of Caesar’s Creek. Within 15 years, more than 18,000 followers of Fox and Penn left the land of slavery and made for the North to find a new home. Others came to the Miami country from Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and other seaboard states.

In April, 1801, twelve families (81 individuals) in the Waynesville area began meeting for worship in a member’s home. Near the end of that year they sent a request to Westland Meeting, Pennsylvania (Baltimore Yearly Meeting) to establish a regular meeting for worship on First and Fifth Days. This request was granted in Ninth Month, 1802. Early in 1803 they asked Redstone Quarterly Meeting for permission to establish a monthly meeting; and when the request was approved, Miami Monthly Meeting was opened on Tenth Month 13, 1803. The eastern boundary was the Hocking River, the southern was the Ohio River, but there was no limit to the north or to the west. During this period of migration, hundreds of Friends from the Carolinas and Georgia brought their membership to Miami Monthly Meeting, until such time as other meetings could be established in the Northwest Territory. By 1815, Miami Monthly Meeting was said to have the largest membership of any Friends Meeting in Quakerdom.

After its establishment in 1803, Miami Monthly Meeting set off many new Meetings. Among the earliest ones were Lees Creek, Hardin Creek, Caesar’s Creek, West Branch, Elk, Center and Whitewater. In 1807 Miami, West Branch and Center Monthly Meetings requested that a new quarterly meeting be established to be known as Miami Quarterly Meeting, to be held at Waynesville, Ohio, on the second Seventh Day in the Second, Fifth, Eighth and Eleventh Months. Baltimore Yearly Meeting having approved the request, Miami Quarterly Meeting was opened in Fifth month 1809. The building of the White Brick Meetinghouse at Waynesville was begun in 1811 to accommodate the Quarterly Meeting.

In 1812, Baltimore Yearly Meeting granted permission to the quarterly meetings west of the Alleghenies to form Ohio Yearly Meeting. The first session was held at Short Creek on the 14th of Eighth month, 1813. The Ohio Yearly Meeting included all meetings in Ohio, Indiana Territory and adjacent areas of Pennsylvania and Virginia.

In 1820, Miami Quarterly Meeting proposed that all Meetings in Illinois, Indiana and western Ohio form Indiana Yearly Meeting. The quarterly meetings making up the proposed Yearly Meeting were Miami, West Branch, Fairfield, Whitewater and Blue River Quarterlies. Ohio Yearly Meeting approved the proposal, and the first session was held at Whitewater (Richmond, Indiana), Eighth month 10, 1821.

When separation occurred in 1828, the Yearly Meeting split into two bodies: Indiana Yearly Meeting (Orthodox), and Indiana Yearly Meeting (Hicksite). At Waynesville, the Hicksite body retained the Meetinghouse. However, in most other cases west of the Alleghenies, the Orthodox body retained it.

For nearly 150 years, there were two bodies known as Indiana Yearly Meeting. In 1975, it seemed desirable for Indiana Yearly Meeting of Friends General Conference to change its name to eliminate the unavoidable confusion which resulted from identical names and to better identify the area included in its membership. For these reasons, in 1976, the name was changed to Ohio Valley Yearly Meeting.

The Yearly Meeting is composed of two Quarters: Miami and Whitewater.

In 2015, Whitewater Quarter consists of Bloomington (Indiana), Clear Creek (Richmond, Indiana), Fall Creek (Pendleton, Indiana), Fort Wayne (Indiana), Hopewell (Dublin, Indiana), Lafayette (Indiana), North Meadow Circle (Indianapolis, Indiana), and White Rose (Wabash, Indiana) Monthly Meetings.

Miami Quarter consists of Campus (Wilmington, Ohio), Community (Cincinnati, Ohio), Dayton (Ohio), Eastern Hills (Cincinnati, Ohio), Englewood (Clayton, Ohio), Green Plain (South Charleston, Ohio), Lexington (Kentucky), Louisville (Kentucky), Miami (Ohio), Oxford (Ohio), and Yellow Springs (Ohio) Monthly Meetings.
This is a list of terms sometimes used in Quaker practice. Some appear in this document; all have been used in Quaker speech and writings.

Advices: Friends have found it useful to regularly remind one another of shared qualities. Advices touch on the foundations of true, personal discipline, on the care of our children, on family life and on the character of our day-to-day living.

Affirmation: A legal declaration made by Friends or others who conscientiously decline to take an oath.

Assistant Clerk: A person who assists a clerk and is prepared to fill in when the clerk is unable to act.

Associate Member: A minor child recorded as a member at the request of parents, one or both of whom are members of the monthly meeting. Associate Members may be transferred to full membership status at their own request, preferably in writing, after they have reached an age of decision on religious associations and are familiar with Friends principles.

Being Moved to Speak: In the quietness of the Meeting one feels urged by the Divine Spirit to share a spoken message.

Birthright Member: A Friend born of at least one Quaker parent and recorded at birth on the membership rolls of the meeting.

Breaking Meeting: The act of closing of the Meeting for Worship when a designated person or persons shake hands with those seated next to them.

Budget: The annual statement listing the Meeting’s financial needs and sources of income for a specified period of time.

Center Down: To endeavor to still our conscious thoughts, clear our minds, and open ourselves to hear God speak directly to us.

Clearness: Confidence that an action is consistent with the divine will.

Clearness Committee: There are three kinds: (1) In a proposed marriage, a committee of Friends appointed to help determine the clearness of the persons intending marriage with each other and of the Meeting to take their marriage under its care. (2) A committee appointed to assist a person who is considering membership in the Meeting and of the Meeting to take the person into membership. (3) A committee to assist one or more persons or the meeting to discern the right way forward with respect to a decision or concern.

Committee for Sufferings: A committee to support and care for members and their families who suffer imprisonment or other forms of hardship because of their commitment to Friends’ principles.

Concern: A quickening sense of the need to do something about a situation or issue in response to what is felt to be a direct intimation of God’s will. A concern, whether of an individual or a Meeting, implies an interest so deep and vigorous that it often moves to action.

62 Section approved at annual sessions in June 2018
Consensus: A term used in secular world to indicate a unanimous agreement. Among Friends, it is sometimes used loosely as a synonym for “Sense of the Meeting” (see below).

Continuing Revelation: The belief that God still speaks to people directly and in so doing may reveal God’s desires or directions for an individual or a group of people.

Convinced Friend: A member who has become a Friend as a result of being led to this decision by the Inner Teacher after contemplation, prayer and inward seeking.

Correspondent: A person responsible for the transmission, reception and acknowledgement of communications sent from, or to, the Meeting. Frequently, the presiding clerk will assume this responsibility.

Discernment: Spiritual understanding or insight and the ability to apply these to spiritual matters.

Elder: An individual appointed to foster the spiritual life of the Meeting and of the individuals in it.

Eldering: Lovingly expressing concern and tenderly questioning an individual’s behavior and encouraging improvement.

Epistle: A public letter of greeting and ministry. Such letters are sent from a Friends meeting or organization to other Friends groups, to supply information, spiritual insight and encouragement.

First Day School: Friends’ designation for Sunday religious education programs provided for children and adults.

Gathered Meeting: Those special occasions when a Meeting attains a greater than usual sense of the Divine Presence, touching the hearts of all and uniting them in a common experience of holy fellowship.

Good Order / Rightly Ordered: Those procedures for the conduct of Friends business and witness that encourage a meeting to carry out its corporate activities under divine leading.

Gospel Order: A term used by George Fox and others to describe the new covenant order of the church under the headship of Christ. It concerns how we live faithfully in relationship with God, each other, and all of creation.

Hold in the Light: To desire that divine guidance and healing will be present for an individual who is in distress or faces a difficult situation; also, to give prayerful consideration to an idea.

Inward Light / Inner Light / Light Within / Light of Christ: The direct, unmediated experience of the Divine. Some of the other equivalent terms often found in Quaker writings are: the Spirit, the Spirit of Truth, the Divine Principle, the Seed, the Guide, the Christ Within, the Inward Teacher, that of God in every person.

Leading: A sense of being called by God to undertake a specific course of action, often arising in response to a concern.

Mind the Light: An expression used to remind Friends that the “Inward Light” can reveal God’s will and direction to us. Minding the Light calls for both active obedience to divine leadings and carefully nurturing openness to the Light.

Ministers: Members who are recognized by a Meeting as having a special gift for ministry, both in speaking and in other forms of service.
Ministry: Sharing or acting upon one’s gifts, whether speaking during a meeting for worship or in service to individuals, to the meeting, or to the larger community.

Minute: The record of corporate unity reached during a business meeting.

Monthly Meeting: A congregation of Friends who meet regularly for worship and to conduct corporate business. Also, used to describe the monthly gathering of such a body to conduct business.

Opening: A spiritual insight, opportunity or leading.

Opportunity: A spontaneous period of worship, especially one that occurs when a traveling minister visits Friends in their homes.

Out of Unity: Not in harmony with Friends’ principles and testimonies.

Overseers: Members of a committee that gives pastoral care and nurture to all members and attenders. This term is no longer in general use; in most meetings, this function has been taken up by the Committee on Ministry & Counsel.

Plain Speech: The practice of early Friends to use of “thee, thy, thou, and thine” when addressing a single person and to refer to the days of the week and months of the year by number (e.g., First Day for Sunday).

Preparative Meeting: A group of members of an established monthly meeting which ordinarily gathers for worship at another place under the care of the monthly meeting.

Presiding Clerk: The person who conducts business meetings and is sensitive to the guidance of the Spirit. The essential task is to discern when the meeting is in spiritual unity. The clerk then prepares a draft minute reflecting the “sense of the meeting” for consideration. The presiding clerk is often assisted by an assistant clerk and a recording clerk.

Proceed as Way Opens: To wait for divine guidance when seeking to solve a problem or address a concern. Spiritual direction may result from a time of active seeking or arrive unexpectedly. Frequently, it points to a previously unforeseen way forward.

Programmed Meeting: A Meeting for Worship, usually conducted by a designated leader, with a predetermined program, often including music, an offering, sermon, etc. Most programmed meetings among Friends include a period of waiting worship.

Quaker: A member of the Religious Society of Friends. Originally, this was a derogatory term applied to Friends because their excitement of spirit when led to speak in a meeting for worship was sometimes expressed in a shaking or quaking motion.

Quarterly Meeting: A regional gathering of members of constituent monthly meetings, traditionally on four occasions each year, but now three times.

Queries: A set of questions, based on Friends’ practices and testimonies, which are considered by Meetings and individuals as a way of examining individual and corporate lives and guiding actions.

Recorded Ministers: A member who is recognized by a monthly meeting as having the gift of vocal ministry or a special gift of service to the Meeting or the wider community.

Recording Clerk: The person appointed to record minutes at regular and called business meetings.
Released Friend: A Friend whose leading to carry out a particular course of action has been approved by his or her meeting. In doing so, the meeting takes on the responsibility to provide such support as would enable the Friend to follow that leading.

Sense of the Meeting: A decision on some issue or concern which is considered to be in accordance with the divine will. This is usually discerned by the presiding clerk and formulated into a proposed minute.

Sojourning Member: When a Friend is temporarily residing at a distance from his or her home meeting, she or he may apply to become a Sojourning Member of a closer meeting. The member’s membership and primary financial responsibility remains with his or her home meeting.

Speak to One’s Condition: The experience of hearing a message spoken by another person as coming directly from God. This message may help solve a problem or point to a right decision.

Stand Aside: An action taken by an individual who has genuine reservations about a particular decision, but who also recognizes that the decision is clearly supported by the weight of the Meeting. The action of standing aside allows the Meeting to reach unity.

Statistician / Recorder: A person responsible for maintaining a meeting’s membership records, including all births, marriages, removals and deaths occurring among members, and recording the attendance at meetings for worship.

Stewardship: Good stewardship directs Friends’ investments of time and money in sustainable and renewable resources and in work that supports Quaker values and beliefs.

Stop / Stop in the Mind: A clear sense of spiritual uneasiness in the face of a proposed decision or action, and an inability to follow it.

Take under the Care: The decision by a meeting to take responsibility for an activity, program, or event and to which it gives oversight. This includes a marriage, the ministry of an individual, or a worship group.

Testimony: A public witness to the ways in which one’s relationship with God has given direction to her or his life. These may be personal or corporate. Some traditional testimonies are seeking divine guidance in all things, living simply, integrity, peace and nonviolence, temperance in all things, making affirmation instead swearing an oath, and acknowledging the worth of each individual regardless of race, sex or religion.

Threshing Session: A gathering of Friends to consider a controversial issue in a way that is free from the necessity of reaching a decision.

Traveling Minute: A statement of endorsement that a Meeting gives to a member who feels called to visit other meetings and Friends groups to share a concern. It establishes the good standing of the Friend and that the meeting has united with the traveler’s concern.

Treasurer: An individual designated by the meeting to manage its financial resources.

Truth: The revealed will of God, as best discerned by a meeting under the guidance of the Inward Light.

Unity: The sense of spiritual oneness and harmony whose realization is a primary objective of a meeting for worship or a meeting for business.

Unprogrammed Meeting / Waiting Worship / Silent Worship: A Meeting for Worship held with minimal pre-planning. Friends gather at a specified time and place in silence, waiting on God and the leadings of the Spirit. Some Friends may be given vocal messages to share with the Meeting or it may be entirely silent.

Vocal Ministry: To share a message or prayer during a meeting for worship.

Weighty Member: An informal term for a Friend who is respected for spiritual depth, wisdom, and long service to the Religious Society of Friends.

Worship Group: A group of people who meet for worship, but do not conduct business. This may be formed under the care of a monthly meeting or by the gathering together of people outside of the yearly meeting structure.

Worship Sharing: A group practice that acknowledges the presence of God during which participants share personal experiences and feelings in response to a prearranged theme or a set of questions.

Yearly Meeting: Friends from a geographically extended area who gather in annual sessions to worship and conduct business together. This term is also used to denote the total membership of the constituent monthly meetings of a designated yearly meeting.
